About Haiti
Why We Interfere

TWO THINGS you should do as you mail Christmas cards and Christmas letters and packages.

Mail everything EARLY and help the postoffice, which is YOUR PROPERTY.

Mail as many letters and cards as you can BY AIR MAIL thus helping the cause of aviation, and showing your approval of the admirable work that the postoffice, under the President's direction, does, building up our postoffice air fleet.

The Stout Air Service line, operating from Detroit, will carry its hundred thousandth passenger today, and that passenger, very appropriately, will be Governor Green of Michigan.

Stout Air Services have rendered good service to aviation. And Governor Green, who will be the one hundred thousandth passenger, is an excellent governor and has rendered good service to his state.

This is a day to congratulate American aviation, the Stout Air Service, Inc., AND Governor Green.

Mr. Henry Neil writes: "I propose to pay you $50,000 if you will spend four weeks in Haiti, and thoroughly investigate conditions there."

It's an excellent offer, as Mr. Weber once said to Mr. Fields, but it is possible to write usefully about Haiti here in the United States without charging Mr. Neil $50,000.

For instance, two important French newspapers suggest that the League of Nations should look into the Haiti matter and tell the United States what to do about it. They think we are trying to rob those poor Haitians.

We and by, perhaps, when we get into the World Court, which is only the back door address of the League of Nations, Europe will have a chance to give us instructions.

Meanwhile we are doing our best to keep Haiti fit for the Haitians, such as they are.

It is only 24 years since they murdered their own president in the public square, disemboweling him and cutting his body into four pieces. Some "educated" Haitian had probably read that "drawing and quartering" was the punishment for traitors.

The French locked up Toussaint L'Overture, who was the best man who ever ruled Haiti.

After that Jean Jacques Dessalines, colored, became governor, promptly massacring all the whites and crowning himself emperor. He was assassinated, because he was a little too tyrannical even for Haiti.

Next Henri Christophe established himself as "King Henry the First" and built his big castle and fort, still worth seeing, on top of a high mountain.

Haiti is a member of the League of Nations, if you please.

When the United States went in to help in 1915, everything in the black republic was going to decay. Irrigation projects, started under white rule, were abandoned, the island's production and foreign trade were dwindling, the courts were comically corrupt.

Education had stopped, except for work done by French Catholic priests. Poverty and disease made things worse.

If the League of Nations believes that that situation can be met with kind words, let it go over and experiment.

President Hoover doubtless will be glad to give the League every opportunity, if it will take the responsibility and not disturb the Monroe Doctrine.

Do you drink? Probably not, but if you ever should, Dr. Geiger, official toxicologist, which means poison expert, of New York city, says you must be thoroughly oxidized, which means that you must get into your system much oxygen.

With little oxygen, a little alcohol intoxicates you. With a great deal of oxygen, you can stand a great deal of alcohol—only you should never do that.

A man riding to hounds from sunrise to sunset can drink two magnums, about four quarts, of strong ale and not feel it.

A man shut up in an office with little oxygen in his lungs and blood, becomes heavy and mentally worthless after one pint of Guinness' stout.

The idea, of course, is to drink plenty of water and breathe plenty of fresh air, leaving alcohol alone, especially in a bootleg country.

The country, apparently, is still doing business. "Big Steel," Wall Street's name for the United States Steel Corporation, shows unfilled orders for steel tonnage increased by 58,733 tons last month.

The company has a total of unfilled orders amounting to 4,125,245 tons, which does not look much like "panic."

GEN. FOOTE, 26TH HEAD, RETIRED

Move Comes Following Probe of Scandal at Camp Devens

Although placed on the emergency officers' retirement list by the War Department, Maj.-Gen. Alfred E. Foote has no intention of resigning his command of the 26th Division, National Guard, he said today.

The YD head made application to be placed on the emergency officers retirement list several months ago.

In pursuance of routine, Maj.-Gen. Foote will shortly be examined by a medical board to determine if his disability affects his efficiency as commanding officer of the 26th.

According to Washington, Maj.-Gen. Foote will be retired with the rank of lieutenant-general.

In retirement, he is entitled to three-quarters of a lieutenant-colonel's pay, or compensation because of disability. Ordinarily, however, the three-quarters pay runs higher than disability payments.

While the YD chief refused to disclose what this liability is, however, it is believed it will not affect his standing in the National Guard.

Several other officers of the divi-

Flames of War Again Sweep Over Huge Penal Plant

Aerial photo shows Auburn (N. Y.) prison at the height of the bloody warfare which was waged there by convicts last July. War again broke out there today when armed convicts attacked the guards. In the previous conflict three convicts were slain, four escaped, 17 others were shot and fire damage of $500,000 was done before the prisoners could be subdued. (International Newsreel photo.)

Warden Edgar Jennings of Auburn Prison, who had been held captive in the convict war today, has been rescued by State troops.

MANY WOUNDED AS TROOPS RESCUE AUBURN WARDEN

Auburn, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Auburn State Prison was controlled by convicts late today, after four hours of rioting that spread death and terror inside the prison walls.

Four men were known to have been slain. They were the principal keeper of the prison and three convicts. Many other guards and convicts were wounded, one guard probably fatally.

Warden Edgar S. Jennings and seven guards, captured and about to be slain by the mutineers, were snatched from death by State troopers, who rushed the main hall, where they were held prisoners. Three convicts were shot dead and three guards wounded in the battle.

A report that another convict was slain during the first of the rioting could not be confirmed.

Although practically all of the 1,580 convicts in the prison were out of their cells most of the rioting was done by a desperate group of long termers, numbering less than 40.

The remaining prisoners were herded in the main yard, milling about under the guns of more than 1,000 National Guardsmen, National Troopers and police.

The desperadoes controlled the sweep of the prison yard with guns thrust through the small, barred windows of the main hall. Two airplanes carrying tear gas bombs were en route from Miller Field, L. I.

The surrounding forces prepared to rush the barricade before darkness should fall over the prison and allow the main body of prisoners to escape and bring further terror.

The rescue of Warden Jennings and the guards, captured when the mutiny began, followed an ultimatum from 20 ringleaders of the outbreak, all long-term prisoners, that they would be shot down unless the convicts were given safe conduct to freedom.

"We have guns trained on Jennings and 12 guards. If you don't give us free passage out in 15 minutes, we will kill them all," the message read.

Acting Governor Herbert Lehman replied: "There will be no compromise."

Commissioner of Correction Dr. Raymond F. C. Keib ordered: "If they come out, shoot. If they don't come out, go in and get them."

Thirty-five minutes after the convicts' threat was received Capt. McGrath led a picked detail of state troopers through the main prison gate, which had been flung open, and with drawn guns and tear gas bombs rushed the main hall, where the guards were held.

Three convicts were shot dead in the pitched battle that followed. In the confusion Warden Jennings and the guards managed to escape, and the raiding party withdrew from the prison, having accomplished its purpose.

The warden was slightly gassed during the attack and was taken to a hospital.

He had been held prisoner hand-cuffed to a convict. The convict was wounded during the attack.

The rioting convicts barricaded themselves in the hall and prepared to make a last desperate stand against the forces mobilizing outside the gates.

The list of reported dead included George Dunford, principal keeper of the prison, and Henry Sullivan, a long-term convict and spokesman for the ringleaders during their attempted negotiations with the authorities.

Sullivan was shot dead as the troopers entered the gates, and as he emerged in the uniform of a guard in which he hoped to escape

MERRITHEW TO BE GIVEN D. S. C.

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—The distinguished service cross would be conferred upon Otis B. Merrithew, who served under the name of Corporal William B. Cutting in the same company with Sergeant Alvin York in the World War, under a bill introduced today by Representative Luce, of Massachusetts.

Otis B. Merrithew came into prominence several months ago when he declared himself "sick and tired" of hearing Sergt. Alvin T. York praised as the "one man army" of the American forces in France during the World War.

Since then he has been fighting for recognition of his part in the Argonne Forest engagement during which a detail, under the command of Sergt. York, captured 132 Germans.

He lives in Brookline and is now employed as a chauffeur in the highway department.

Rescue 19 Trapped by Fire in Revere

Five children were carried out by ladders and 14 men and women were led to the street by firemen after they had been trapped in an apartment block at 70 to 76 Sumner st., Revere, today.

The fire, caused by the backfire of an oil heater in the cellar of the block, spread to the lower floor apartment of Arthur Singer at No. 70. Thick clouds of black smoke swirled through the other apartments.

The explosion awakened Singer and, lightly clad, he raced to a nearby box and sounded the alarm. Rushing back, he sent his wife in the street to direct the fire apparatus. In his excitement he carried his child to the third floor of the building, whither he went to arouse his brother, Herman and the latter's wife.

When the firemen arrived they were spurred into action by the screams of those trapped in the building.

The first child to be brought out was Sheldon Singer from the top floor at No. 70 Sumner st. He was rescued by Ladderman Elmer Maigen. Stanley and June Rosenfield, living on the second floor, were rescued by Ladderman Jerry Sullivan.

In carrying Morris Kramer from the second floor of 72 Sumner st., Ladderman Sullivan slipped and dropped 15 feet down the ladder before he was able to catch a rung and save himself and the child.

Ask for $10,000,000 for Cape Cod Canal

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—A group of business men representing the New England Council, headed by Senator Gillett, called upon President Hoover today urging his support for a federal appropriation of approximately $10,000,000 to widen and deepen the Cape Cod canal which was purchased by the government a year ago for $7,500,000.

Representations made by the group were that the canal was not in shape to take care of the large volume of heavy traffic which desires to pass through it.

TROOPS USE GAS BOMBS TO FIGHT AUBURN PRISON MUTINEERS

WARDEN IS RESCUED AFTER BEING HELD HOSTAGE

identification. A trooper recognized him, a machine gun was swung on him and he fell literally riddled with bullets.

One of the leaders of the riot, Sullivan was serving a 20-year term for robbery.

The mutineers included Ernest Pavesi, serving a 15-year term, and Joseph Kravatsam and Stephen Pawlak, sentenced last week to life imprisonment for participation in the prison riot last July.

Tear bombs were sent to the prison from police headquarters at Syracuse.

A national guard airplane has been dispatched from Staten Island headquarters. It will also, the state guard camp at Peekskill, take on a load of tear bombs and proceed to the prison.

The mutiny began before 11 o'clock when David Winney, a guard entered the main hall and was held up by a convict with a pistol. Winney ran, was shot at but escaped.

Telephone wires were cut during the first minutes of the uprising and the convicts, whipping guns from beneath their uniforms, rushed the main hall where the warden and keepers were attending a meeting.

Led by long term prisoners, many of them slayers, the convicts overpowered the warden and his men, herded them into a corner of the big hall and laid down their terms for freedom.

TWO BUILDINGS FIRED

Two shots were fired as the rioting began and all National Guard companies available were ordered from Syracuse and other cities to the prison. When firemen arrived the convicts were in control of the prison and they could not enter.

The firemen placed ladders against the walls and climbed up, held by state troopers.

All the state police on duty throughout that section of the state were rushed to Auburn and concerned about the prison.

With the walls entirely surrounded by National Guard soldiers, with loaded guns, city officials ordered three more gate of the prison open at noon and sent word to the convicts to file out.

More than 1000 armed men, including guardsmen, troops, police and private citizens, formed a hollow square in front of the gates at the foot of Wall Street, prepared to stage a pitched battle if the convicts failed to obey the order and attempted to get away.

Because of fear that Warden Jennings and 12 guards in the hands of the convicts would be killed, the ultimatum heralding the attack.

All traffic had been stopped for a mile on either side of the prison and the prison area was literally filled with troops.

Early reports had it that the convicts had seized the revolvers and rifles of several guards but had not broken into the arsenal, where machine guns, bombs and other weapons are kept.

The troops ordered out by Governor Lehman comprise the 108th Infantry, State National Guard. The order followed out a plan for hurried mobilization of troops to handle prison outbreaks perfected after the riots of last summer.

The 108th Infantry is composed of two Auburn companies and units from Geneva and Syracuse.

ARMS SMUGGLED IN.

Firearms evidently had been smuggled into the prison. Precautions against firearms had been taken following the outbreak of last summer. At that time the convicts seized guns that had been stored within the enclosure. Since then all arms have been kept outside the prison walls.

Two companies, located in Auburn, were soon on the scene.

The last riot at Auburn prison occurred on Sunday, July 28. Fifty long-term convicts and 1700 inmates in the revolt, captured the prison arsenal, stormed the main gates and burned prison shops valued at $500,000.

Two convicts were killed, a third was seriously wounded, four guards were wounded by gunfire, and four convicts escaped. One was killed later while resisting capture.

It being Sunday afternoon, the force of guards had been reduced to one-third strength, but a mere handful of guards held the convicts at bay until the remainder of the staff and supporting state troopers arrived on the scene.

The outbreak was the second of a series of four major prison uprisings which occurred in various parts of the country within a period of four months.

AT DANNEMORA.

The first of the series occurred at Dannemora prison, Dannemora, N. Y., on July 22, known as "Siberia" to the underworld. Clinton prison inmates only, the most desperate criminals. Thirteen hundred of them rushed the guards in a daring rush, overpowering them.

Three of the convicts were killed and the uprising finally subdued by guards and troops from the state militia camp at Plattsburg.

Convicts at the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas., rebelled over the quality of their food and the discipline system Aug. 3. One prisoner was killed and three injured.

The most serious of the four outbreaks was at the Colorado State prison at Canyon City on Oct. 3.

12 SLAIN IN COLORADO.

Seven guards and five convicts lost their lives in the Colorado mutiny. The riot ended after 24 hours of furious fighting when the ringleaders committed suicide. The guards killed were seized as hostages by the prisoners and murdered one by one and their bodies thrown out of the cellhouse windows when authorities refused to grant the convicts demands for freedom.

More than 150 prisoners were confined to the cellhouse in which the leaders barricaded themselves. National Guard troops and police details from three cities poured round after round of ammunition into the convict stronghold and attempts were made to dynamite the cellhouse walls.

Their cause hopelessly lost, and nine of them having been wounded, the riot leaders turned their guns upon themselves, and the other prisoners in the building immediately surrendered. Several guards and prisoners were wounded during the battle.

Warden in Wild Plea

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 11—"For God's sake, give them what they want," was the message sent out from Warden Edgar Jennings of Auburn Prison, held captive by the prison rioters.

The message preceded an assault on the prisoners' stronghold at 12:35 by state troopers led by Capt. McGrath and armed with rifles, machine guns and tear gas bombs.

Dr. Raymond F. Cox, state commissioner of corrections, sent the following message to the troopers: "Warden Jennings said, 'If they don't come out, go in and get them.'"

Rochester Sends Aid to Auburn Police

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 11—In response to a call from the chief of police at Auburn for all available men and weapons to assist in quelling rioting convicts at Auburn prison four automobiles loaded with police, armed with firearms and tear gas bombs were immediately dispatched from this city. Police on outlying beats were called in to follow as soon as possible.

The prison is on the outskirts of Auburn, a city of 36,000 population, 23 miles southwest of Syracuse, 57 miles east of Rochester and 30 miles south of Lake Ontario.

Auburn Man Pleads Guilty of Bigamy

Auburn, Me., Dec. 11 (AP)—Adelard A. Roy, 35, of this city, pleaded guilty in municipal court today to a charge of bigamy, and in default of $1000 bail was remanded for the January term of the Superior Court.

Roy admitted that he had married Mary H. Seubert in 1925 after he said he had heard that his first wife, Lida Mercincy Roy, of Sherbrooke, Que., was dead. Roy was arrested on a warrant sworn out by his second wife.

TROOPS RUSHED TO SAVE WARDEN

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 11 (INS)—Four units of the New York National Guard—two from Auburn, one from Syracuse and another from Geneva—were rushed to the state prison at Auburn today to quell a prison outbreak and to incidentally "save the general."

For the warden, Edgar S. Jennings, who was held a hostage by 15 prisoners who declare they will kill him if he doesn't throw open the gates, is a brigadier-general in the national guard and is the commander of the units sent to the scene.

Head Keeper Second to Be Killed at Auburn Prison

Auburn, N. Y., Dec. 11 (AP)—George A. Durnford, principal keeper of Auburn State Prison, who was killed today in a mutiny of the convicts under his care, was the second principal keeper in that prison to lose his life in two years.

Principal Keeper James Durnan was stabbed to death Nov. 16, 1927, by Alexander Kalinowsky, a convict. Kalinowsky was electrocuted on August 9, 1928. The weapon he used was a knife manufactured from a file and it was used during the course of an argument with Durnan.

Firehug Hunted in South Boston Blaze

Following discovery of fire for the third time in a three-family tenement on East Seventh st., South Boston, a firebug is being sought by police and State officials.

Twice the fire was discovered before it did any damage, but the third time the flames had gained considerable headway and nine members of one family were left homeless.

A report was made to the police by District Fire Chief Michael Feeley and investigation was begun immediately.

The fire started on the second floor, which was unoccupied. The loss was estimated at $2000. The third floor also was unoccupied, but on the first floor were Mr. and Mrs. John Carney and their seven children, ranging from 1 to 17 years of age.

They all got out safely before the flames swept downward into their apartment, but before firemen got the blaze under control the Carney family had been burned out.

Smoke from the fire filled all three floors. Mrs Constantino was asleep on the second floor. Her husband, Gabriel was aroused by the crackling of flames, and aroused his wife. Mrs. Constantino jumped out of her bed, but due to the excitement, she collapsed.

Firemen and policemen assisted the woman to the street.

Quick work on the part of the firemen confined the flames to the basement and the first floor, which is occupied by a delicatessen store.

Bartlett also pleaded guilty to the theft of a boat and 100 sticks of dynamite. He was held in $2500 and Ellis in $500 for the grand jury.

Both men were charged with entering the cellhouse at County Club last September where gaff equipment worth $600 was stolen. WASHBURN ASKS COOLIDGE IF HE IS CANDIDATE

Senate Situation Should Be Cleaned Up, Says Head of Roosevelt Club

Former President Coolidge was asked frankly today whether he intends to be a candidate for the Senate, to succeed Senator Frederick H. Gillett.

In a letter sent today to Coolidge, and made public at the same time, Robert M. Washburn, president of the Roosevelt Club, requested the former chief executive's decision, declaring that Republicans feel they should begin work immediately toward election of a Republican.

His letter said:

"My dear Mr. Coolidge. There are many members of the Roosevelt Club who feel that they ought to get to work immediately to effect the election of a Republican to the Senate.

"If you are not to enter the situation, we are then free to espouse the cause of some other Republican. Under the present conditions they feel that the party and they are at a dangerous disadvantage. They are embarrassed.

"May I therefore, ask whether you would accept an unopposed nomination for the Senate, which they would be glad to indorse if reasonably made?"

Senator Gillett announced a few weeks ago that he will not be a candidate for re-election next year.

sion, it was pointed out, have been placed on the emergency officers' retirement list, but have retained their active commission in the Massachusetts outfit.

At the adjutant-general's office today it was admitted that the retirement listing had been made, but that the order had not come through to Massachusetts yet officially.

Usual procedure is for the militia bureau at Washington to notify the adjutant-general of the State in an instance of this kind.

Col. Percy B. Chase, aide to Adjutant-General Jesse F. Stevens, said that he knew of 15 officers holding active commissions in the National Guard who have been placed on the emergency officers' retirement list.

In connection with Gen. Foote's retirement rating, it was rumored today that Governor Allen had asked for the resignation of Col. Sidney Cliffe, chief of staff of the 26th Division, and Lieut.-Col. Everett R. Prout, assistant chief of staff.

This was denied, however, by Col. Cliffe himself, who said that last Monday, at his own request, he had been transferred to the National Guard reserves.

Col. Cliffe said that he had been anxious to retire for a year.

Gen. Foote made a denial also, declaring that he had no request from Gov. Allen for the shelving of Col. Cliffe or Lt.-Col. Prout.

The retirement listing of Gen. Foote recalled last summer's scandal at Camp Devens that included alleged "fake" stories written about the division while it was in camp, and the alleged beating of two privates by a captain.

The erroneous stories resulted in Gen. Foote apologizing to officials and citizens of Ayer.

LAW DEANS RAP BILL TO OUST EXAMINERS

The Heads of Three Schools Praise Present Board for Effort to Raise Standards

Disapproval of the bill introduced in the Legislature, providing for abolition of the state board of bar examiners and the creation in its stead of a commission of nine examiners was voiced today by the deans of Suffolk, Portia and the Northeastern University Law schools.

"The move to have the Supreme Court appoint nine bar examiners in place of the present board seems to be unnecessary and in its present form impractical," Dean Gleason C. Archer of Suffolk Law School said. "If it provided for a second board to take care of disbarment complaints, it might facilitate matters and improve conditions, but to merely change bar examiners serves no good purpose.

"The present board is doing excellent work. It should be supplemented with a second board to handle disbarment questions. The bill is too ambitious as it stands."

Dean Arthur W. MacLean of Portia Law school ventured the opinion that disgruntled students who had failed to pass the bar examinations were probably behind the move to oust the present board.

"Since only 30 to 40 per cent of those who take the exams pass, the majority of law students may feel dissatisfied," Dean MacLean said. "But the constantly increasing number of students has caused the examinations to become more difficults, to raise the standard, because the field is growing too crowded. The board has used excellent judgment in raising standards, and I do not see how a new commission would alter the situation, for standards must be kept high where the supply exceeds the demand."

"I am not sure but that the present board of bar examiners, functioning all the time on bar examinations, is not the more capable of doing this work than any commission appointed by the Supreme Court might be," Dean E. A. Churchill of Northeastern University said. "This school stands solidly behind any move to make standards higher, but I do not see how this bill will remedy them. While it may have some advantages, these are offset by the proven ability of the present board."

There was an important Mexican gathering in New York yesterday. The United States was glad to welcome that gathering in the big city where high finance has its capital. Ther was Pascual Ortiz Rubio, recently elected President of Mexico.

And, to make the party complete, Dwight W. Morrow, United States ambassador to Mexico, good friend of Calles and Ortiz Rubio, also arrived in New York.

Millions of Mexicans work in the United States.

The United States needs the friendship of Mexico. Mexico needs the financial power of this country, and to some extent, its industrial leadership, subject to Mexican control.

TRIPLE INQUIRY SEEKS TO FIX BLAME IN STUDIO HOLOCAUST

SAY LAW ON SPRINKLERS VIOLATED

Cigarette or Spark of Carbon Have Started Blaze That Cost 10 Lives

New York, Dec. 11 (INS).—While relatives were bowed in grief three separate investigations were in full swing today in an effort by authorities to determine the cause and fix the blame, if any, for the disastrous fire in the Pathe Manhattan Studios, Inc., in which 10 persons were killed and 18 injured.

Four of those who perished were girls, from 17 to 20. They died in gay, short-skirted ballet costumes they had donned for the "talkie" comedy about to be filmed.

Three theories were given by investigators as to what may have caused the fire. A bit of white-hot carbon fell from an arc lamp to some draperies, a careless-tossed cigarette, or a short circuit.

Thomas P. Brophy, chief fire marshal, said his inquiry had not reached the point where responsibility could be definitely placed. Assistant Dist. Atty. P. Francis Mann asserted his office would await the findings of the fire marshal. Failure of the studio lessees to install sprinklers came in for criticism from Peter C. Spence, chief of the fire prevention bureau.

Employes at the studio said no one dared smoke there because of a strict rule that called for the dismissal of anyone caught smoking.

Spence said additional legislation should be enacted which would take into consideration the changed conditions in the motion picture industry due to the "talkies."

Mayor James J. Walker declared if existing fire regulations are not stringent enough "they will be made more stringent."

There were 126 men and girls in the studio when the blaze started. The studio was a converted skating rink on the fringe of Harlem's "Black Belt." For years it has been used for making comedies and "thrillers." Many well-known film stars made pictures there.

Most of those who escaped told authorities they "did not know how they got out of the place."

N. E. IS BOOMED BY LAWRENCE

Durham, N. H., Dec. 11.—Declaring that he regarded New England's economic future "with an abiding optimism," John S. Lawrence, of Boston, treasurer of the New England Council, today urged students of the University of New Hampshire to "carefully consider the advantages of life in New England before coming to any definite decision as to where you will take up your life work."

Citing the slogan of the New England Council, "New England is a good place in which to live, work and play, Mr. Lawrence declared it is based "on very substantial facts." Pointing to opportunities in New England, he declared "New England recognizes the value of the trained mind."

New England, with two per cent of the nation's area and seven per cent of its people, has a much higher proportion of individual bank deposits, savings depositors and savings, Mr. Lawrence said.

"On the industrial side, New England has 10 per cent of the nation's manufacturing establishments and 13 per cent of wage-earners in manufacturing. Our transportation facilities are very highly developed."

Other New England industrial advantages he listed as skilled labor and management, extreme diversity of product, ample power and closeness to major markets.

"New England has turned the corner and is definitely on the up grade," he declared.

Hurled Down Stairs, Comes Out Alive

By VIRGINIA CASE
American Girl Fencing Champion and Survivor of the Pathe Studio Fire, Whose Home Is in Baltimore.
Written for Universal Service, Inc.

New York, Dec. 11—Terrified, hysterical girls and women, excited men shouting and shoving people downstairs, smoke so dense one couldn't see at times, noise that sounded like a lot of horses trampling, then a breath of fresh air—and thanks to Harry Delmar and two girls from "Scandals," I am alive.

Delmar was directing the "Black and White Revue" at the time of the studio disaster. I never want to experience another day, like that place of horror and death, the film studio that was the scene of the holocaust.

I was putting on my make-up in our dressing room when some body yelled, "Everybody downstairs." I paid no attention, but the warning was repeated and each time louder and from a voice seemingly excited.

Just then two girls, Ruth and Jola Sparks, rushed in the room where 10 of us dressed and said there was fire downstairs and started to gather up their clothes. I had on only a step-in, so throwing my coat about me I opened the door and looked out. A man grabbed me and actually threw me down stairs. At that moment smoke filled the hall and building and excited people, yelling and pushing All seemed to be trying to get out first.

At the bottom of the stairs I fell and was trampled. I finally got to my feet and was carried along by the crush. Everybody was in a panic.

There were 20 girls in the picture and five principals with two kid performers whose mothers were frantic. The children were saved.

A woman was in the ladies room which had a tiled floor. She was there all during the fire until a fireman rescued her. She told me she would have jumped from the window if she could have opened it rather than remain in there alone with terror all around and the thought of being burned to death as she expected. But the tile floor saved her.

Once in the street we watched the fire from the corner across the way. Girls were almost naked, some had on spare costumes, others only step-ins or light underwear, and most all were crying.

Ruth Goodwin, the leading lady, was crying, standing almost naked and I put my coat around her. Right in front of us they laid the bodies of some of those poor people. O, what a sight!

JUDGE SAYS TOO MANY EVADERS

Lowell, Dec. 10—So long as the fourth and fifth amendments remain in the constitution, there will never be 10 per cent enforcement of the federal liquor laws, U. S. Commr. Richard Brayshook Walch told members of the Lion's Club.

"There are too many loopholes," said Commr. Walch before whom several hundred liquor offenders have appeared.

Liquor law enforcement brought to life the dormant amendments protecting a citizen from unreasonable search and seizure and from giving evidence against himself, he said.

Bradford, R. I., Dec. 11.—Several strikebreakers, bound for the Bradford dyeing plant, were serious injured today when three buses carrying the 90 men were stoned by strikers.

New Danger of Flood Threatens England

London, Dec. 11 (AP).—Fresh gales swept across the British Isles today. Although less severe on land than those of the past few days, which abated yesterday, there was possibility the tempest would work further havoc with shipping in neighboring seas.

London felt only a moderate rain and blustery wind. The rain made the inflow of water in the Thames bigger and increased floodings along the river banks. The stream reached nearly three miles breadth in places.

People were driven from bungalow homes in some instances. Oxford was nearly surrounded by water. Streets were one to two feet deep in flood water while punts were used to deliver food.

Reports continued to arrive regarding the effect of the gales at sea. The steamer St. Louis ran ashore off Ushant and the crew was saved with difficulty. The French steamer St. Cyrille after a severe battering put in at Brest with two men injured. The British steamer Tyne called at Vigo for provisions after having experienced the full force of the recent gale.

The steamship Leonardo Da Vinci arrived off Dungeness with its load of art treasures this morning and awaited a pilot before proceeding to London.

The Thames rose another four inches at Windsor last night and part of the royal castle grounds were under water.

Historic Eton College, across the river from Windsor, was surrounded by floods and only goal posts sticking out of the water indicated the site of playing fields. The top-hatted scholars proceeding to outlying classrooms were forced to use makeshift plank bridges.

Gales Delay Bremen, Ocean Queen, 3 Days

New York, Dec. 11—Terrific gales which have caused heavy loss of life and property along the English coast have extended far out into the Atlantic and delayed from one to three days the arrival of passenger liners in New York.

SUGAR MAN SAYS HOOVER GAVE SHATTUCK O. K.

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—H. C. Lakin, president of the Cuba Company, sugar importers, testified today before the Senate lobby committee that Edwin P. Shattuck would not accept employment with his concern until he had consulted with Mr. Hoover, then President-elect, at Miami, Fla.

Lakin said he wished to employ Shattuck to work for lower sugar duties and that the latter accepted after conferring with the then President-elect. He added that he understood the President said "it was all right."

"In effect, you offered to hire him and he asked Hoover if it would be all right?" Chairman Caraway of the committee asked Lakin.

"Yes," the witness answered, "to see if it would cause the President any embarrassment."

Lakin reiterated previous testimony that Shattuck, an attorney, had been employed "chiefly because of his relations" with President Hoover and Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee. He had told the committee Shattuck was probable Mr. Hoover's "closest legal friend" and he was the personal attorney for the President and his family.

SAYS HANN SAT ON THE LAP OF MRS. ARNOLD

New York, Dec. 11—How Charles Hann, Jr., lawyer and correspondent in the Arnold divorce litigation, sat on Mrs. Bessie Strum Arnold's knee while he bargained with a bootlegger was told in Supreme Court today by a witness called by counsel for Ray H. Arnold.

The witness, James Spencer, who frankly admitted that he had been a bootlegger and who received his testimony in jerky sentences much in the manner of a veteran liquor, took the stand as soon as court opened.

He said that on February 18, 1929, he called on Mrs. Arnold at her home, 270 Park ave., for the purpose of soliciting liquor trade. Hann, attired in a dressing gown, and Mrs. Arnold came into the reception room to greet him, he said, and when Mrs. Arnold sat down, the attorney sat on her knee.

Spencer declared that Hann told him he planned to stage a big party the following day for about 500 guests and that if the quoted prices were satisfactory he would order a large quantity of liquor. Spencer said he gave the lawyer the price of champagne, wine, rye and Scotch which he had for sale. Apparently these prices were too high, however, for Spencer admitted that he left the house without receiving an order.

The witness said he had been a liquor salesman for about two months and that formerly he had solicited advertising for the Reserve Officers' Association of Washington, D. C.

Clubwomen Urged to Spend an Afternoon in School to Learn What Pupils Study

Mrs. Stockbridge Seeks Interest In Curricula

Carrying their educational policies directly into the schoolroom, clubwomen of Massachusetts are urged to spend an afternoon in a classroom and find out what the schools are actually offering the children.

Mrs. C. A. Stockbridge, chairman of education of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, hopes to check up on the clubwomen, ascertaining the actual interest in furthering the school program.

The General Federation has long stressed, as a worthy objective, the interest of clubwomen in curricula.

It has asked whether the school programs in various communities adapt themselves to the needs, capabilities and psychological developments of the child. They have consistently hammered on special curricula for special children, trade courses for those who cannot fit into the purely academic programs, and so on down the educational lines of instruction.

Now comes Mrs. Stockbridge, newly appointed educational chairman, with renewed enthusiasm and determination to "put over" concretely these ideals in Massachusetts club life.

In her special message to clubwomen and local education chairmen of the affiliated clubs, she says:

"Educational procedure should take full account of the difference in native capacity, availability and interests, if each child is to be trained to give to his community the best service of which he is capable. Any single track curricula—one plan for all—is adequate for only a part of our children.

"What then becomes of those others who cannot be fitted into the cut and dried plan? Unless we can provide special classes for the underprivileged, trade courses for those who cannot fit into the academic program, enriched curricula for gifted children, specialized equipment and specially trained teachers, we are enlarging the ranks of the evaders of the compulsory school law; the juvenile delinquents and the misfits of society."

Helping Mrs. Stockbridge to carry out this policy are Mrs. William Brown, Ayer; Mrs. Nathan A. Buck, West Chatham; Mrs. M. Eunice Coolidge, Athol; Mrs. Arthur W. Collins, Melrose; Mrs. Frederick Fegg, Brookline; Mrs. John C. Hull, Leominster; Miss Mary E. P. Lawney, State House, Boston; Mrs. Frederick W. Maston, Cliftondale; Mrs. J. Herbert Mead, Arlington Heights; Mrs. Herbert D. Sherman, Brookline; Miss Lucy B. Slocum, Everett; Mrs. Arthur R. Taylor, South Weymouth, and Mrs. Edgar Treganing, Attleboro.

The plan has the support of the state president, Mrs. Azel A. Packard.

Clara says so and that should settle it. The bride-to-be, who is now recovering from an appendicitis attack in Hollywood, is shown above in three pictures.

63 YEARS TRUE

"Where Can I Buy High Shoes?"

At Coward's, of course

—because Coward Shoe Stores carry a complete line of finely made . . . comfortable fitting . . . smartly designed high shoes for women.

The shoe illustrated above is a popular 7-inch boot built over the famous Combination Last, originally designed by James Coward. It also has the Coward Arch Support. This shoe fits the foot snugly, yet allows plenty of room for comfortable movement of all bones and muscles.

Tan kidskin (wide ankle)	14.85

(Sizes 9½ to 11 are $1 more)

WHEN young James Coward first bent down over his lonely work-bench to carry out his ideal—the making of more comfortable shoes—one of his most important problems was to design a high shoe for women. He realized that in spite of changes in fashion, there would always be many women whose feet would require the support and protection of high shoes.

That is still true today—sixty-three years later. There are still countless women...nurses, doctors, teachers, housewives...who find the well-cut, well-made high shoe a necessity. And these women find their way to Coward Stores, because they know that today Coward—and Coward only—always carries a complete line of fine high shoes.

URGENT PLEAS BY WIDOWS FOR TOTS

"Their father is dead . . . No one is working. . . . It is hard to keep my children warm. . . ."

How can any person resist the heart appeal of such a letter?

This letter is only one of hundreds. It is from a mother who asks nothing for herself and not even toys for the Christmas tree. She will be grateful to some Good fellow for even a thin little sweater or perhaps some warm mittens.

This mother's appeal speaks for itself:

Dear Editor:

I am writing to ask if you can help to keep my children warm going to school. Their father is dead two years and it is hard for us to get along as no one is working. If you will please help us keep their bodies and hands and feet warm I will be more than thankful.

I am sure God will reward you all for your kindness and I will teach my children to always thank their benefactors.

The little girl is 11, and the boy is 14. MRS. L.

Chelsea.

BEFT DESTITUTE

Dear Goodfellow Editor:

As my husband has left us destitute, and while reading the paper, read the good work you are trying to do for those in need, I am taking the opportunity to write and ask you if you could help us. My daughter is in need of a coat, and is really in need of everything. Anything you can do for us will be appreciated.

Somerville. MRS. B.

TOO ILL TO WORK

Dear Goodfellow Editor:

I am a widow with two boys, 12 and 13, and I have not worked for 15 months on account of sickness. I will have a very unhappy Christmas, unless some Goodfellow helps me. I am hoping you can send me some clothing for the children.

I am dependent on you for my Christmas happiness, and I will always be thankful if you help me. MRS. D.

South Boston.

DEPENDS ON CHARITY

Dear Goodfellow Editor:

I would like some help from the Goodfellow Editor. Could you send me some clothes as I am very much in need of them, especially a coat and a dress.

I am a cripple and have not walked without the aid of crutches for five years. I have no means of support and have to depend on charity. I am 50 years old. MRS. Q.

Boston.

FATHER NOT WORKING

Dear Goodfellow Editor:

Could you kindly help me for Christmas? I have three children and my husband isn't working and I am sick myself. The children all need warm clothing. I have two boys, ages 8 and 5, and and girl 6.

I will appreciate anything you can send. MRS. M.

South Boston.

SISTERS NEED CLOTHES

Dear Goodfellow Editor:

My sister and I hope that you will not forget us this Christmas. My father can't work as he has been home sick for nearly six years, since he collapsed in the shop and was brought home in an ambulance. My mother tries hard to earn the money to buy food.

We need shoes and underwear. Please don't forget. MARY

Winthrop.

OTHER NEEDY CASES

Here are some other real cases:

CASE 1. Boy of 12 asks for clothing for his two sisters, 5 and 7, and for himself. His daddy is dead.

CASE 2. Little orphan girl, 4, would like to have some Goodfellow remember her at Christmas.

CASE 3. Widow with three boys, ages 15, 8, 5, would appreciate any kind of clothing for them. She has a hard time finding work to keep them in food.

CASE 4. Widow with four children of school age asks for help. She has been ill since last April and unable to work.

CASE 5. Father in jail. Three children in family all sick with whooping cough. Mother would appreciate any warm clothing given them.

CASE 6. Three boys in family, mother ill, father out of work for past four months. Mother would be grateful for any clothing for the boys and also for a new arrival which is expected next month.

CASE 7. Widow with boy, 8, would like some warm clothes for the boy.

Anyone may join the GOODFELLOWS by the simple process of writing to the GOODFELLOW EDITOR of the Boston Evening American and volunteering to help.

If one of the cases outlined appeal to you, let us know. The exact address of the family needing Christmas cheer will be furnished.

Perhaps you may be too busy to visit or write this family direct. If the GOODFELLOW will send his contribution direct to the Boston Evening American, the GOODFELLOW EDITOR will see that the money is used to purchase toys, food or clothing, as the case may require.

Admiral Evans Bell Awarded to Legion

New Haven, Dec. 11 (AP)—The bell from the U. S. S. Connecticut flagship of the late Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans, has been awarded by Congress to Naval Post 110, American Legion, this city.

The bell, which weighs 1200 pounds, arrived in New Haven last night after completing a 15,000 mile trip from Bremerton Navy Yard, Washington, where the Connecticut was dismantled. The New Haven Post will build a memorial platform for the bell, which will be tolled on special occasions, instead of a saluting battery.

Helen Keller Says Conversion Untrue

New York, Dec. 11 (INS)—Declaring her faith in the doctrines of Emanuel Swedenborg, Helen Keller, in a letter to Rev. Paul Sperry, president of the General Convention of the New Jerusalem, today denied a report that she had been converted to the Persian religious cult of Baha. "Why should I change my faith since it makes my dark, silent world sweet and liveable?" she wrote.

John Wenholt, 45, the father of several children, died suddenly while waiting for a street car near the Watertown terminal of the Boston Elevated Railway.

GRUNDY HARDLY WELCOME TO SENATORS

Washington, Dec. 11—Joseph R. Grundy of Pennsylvania, sure to be appointed by Governor John S. Fisher to fill the seat made vacant by the Senate's refusal to admit William S. Vare, is bound to encounter opposition when he knocks at the door of the national upper chamber.

Grundy's activities as a lobbyist, now under Senate investigation, and the remarks he is alleged to have made in regard to certain of his inquisitors are bound to stir up opposition when he appears.

Reporting on the "lobbying activities" of Grundy, Chairman Caraway of the Senate lobby committee called attention to the certainty of Grundy's appointment.

Caraway took note of recent reference by Pennsylvania Republican leaders to himself and Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, as "old women," and in reply referred to Governor Fisher of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Grundy states that he is undecided whether he will accept a seat in the body or not, which it is forecast will be offered him by the governor of Pennsylvania," he continued. "I want to correct that last statement; not by the governor of Pennsylvania, but by the people who bought and paid for the office the governor of Pennsylvania now occupies."

Kills Father, Mother 'to Get Start in Life'

Waxahachie, Tex., Dec. 11 (AP)—A 17-year-old farm boy, Herman Riley, was held today on a charge of murdering his mother and father, and attempting to kill his brother, in order that he might harvest the produce of their farm and "get a start in life."

District Attorney A. D. Emerson said the boy had confessed that he shot his parents and brother in hopes of "making the crops myself."

Mr. and Mrs. Riley were shot to death Friday and their younger son, Walter, was shot in the nose, and the older boy's confession indicated the district attorney said, that only the fact that Herman believed him dead saved the boy's life.

Herman said he waited a while because "my daddy still was awake." After his father slept, Herman lit a match so he could see the sleeping man, and shot from within a few feet.

His mother, the boy's confession said, ran out of the house, but returned and was shot as she entered the room.

'JILTED' GIRL SUES MAURICE COSTELLO

Los Angeles, Dec. 11 (AP)—Maurice Costello, one-time idol of Broadway, and now gray-haired member of the Hollywood motion picture veterans' ranks, today prepared to combat a $100,000 breach of promise suit filed here by Miss Vivienne Sengler, youthful musician, author and artist.

Declaring he was astonished at the suit, which he termed an "absurd" attempt to "shake me down," the father of Mrs. John Barrymore and Helene Costello, prominent film actresses, denied there ever had been an understanding between him and Miss Sengler.

The girl, however, declared Costello, now near 60, proposed to her in Stockton, Cal., Sept. 16, 1928, and they mutually agreed to be married last April 22. As the wedding date approached, her complaint cited, his attitude changed, and he refused to go through with their plans.

He said she had proposed to him, but asserted his reaction was such that he had not seen her since.

"The girl's mother (Mrs. Rita Costello Sengler of San Francisco) met me in the lobby of the Pantages Theater in San Francisco while I was playing there in the spring of 1928," said Costello. "She traced back our lineage and pointed out that some of our supposed relatives are priests in Iowa.

"When Mrs. Sengler's daughter came to Hollywood about a year ago she came to me and asked for advice in marketing some scenarios she had written. I supposed she was some kind of a relative and advised her from time to time.

"I jokingly told her she should marry some young fellow and settle down, and she said she wanted to marry me. Since then—that conversation took place in my Hollywood home—I have not had anything to do with her, as the proposal startled me."

Miss Sengler said she was a descendant of an ancient French or Spanish family, and was born in New York. Since the age of five she has appeared on the concert stage as a pianist and gained some renown at the age of 13 as a composer. She attended the University of California and after leaving school played on the vaudeville stage in an act called "The Versatile Girl." She said she was in love with Costello and would be glad to marry him "if this suit is settled out of court."

Costello's wife, Mrs. Mae Costello, whom he married in New York in 1902, and from whom he was divorced in 1927, died this year.

FLO ZIEGFELD BRINGS EDDIE CANTOR BACK TO SCREEN FOR "WHOOPEE"

"GLORIFIER" TO FILM SHOW

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 11—Listen my children and you shall hear of the story of Florenz Ziegfeld and Hollywood. The inimitable Flo who has glorified more American beauties and discovered more potential talent than any producer in the world, is due here March 1. He comes at the request of Samuel Goldwyn with whom he will be associated in his motion picture activities and as I said five months ago, their very first production will be "Whoopee."

Just as apple pie and cheese are absolutely inseparable to are Eddie Cantor and "Whoopee." I would break down and weep if any one attempted "Whoopee" without Eddie who is one of my favorites. I can save my tears because Eddie is to play the part in "Whoopee" he created on the stage. Having seen "Whoopee" three times and paid real money two of those times to listen to Eddie you can see why I am so prejudiced in his favor. I like him, that's all.

Louella O. Parsons

Mr. Ziegfeld goes abroad with Samuel Goldwyn to attend the opening of "Condemned" in London January 4. If London likes "Condemned" as well as Boston liked "Roll Dog Drummond" Samuel can celebrate New Years in royal style.

FIRST NATIONAL has a perfect right to do a little boasting. They have up and put the names of Jerome Kearns and Otto Harbach on a long-term contract to write music for First National's musical comedies. Furthermore, these two have already started work on a First National original. Who are Jerome Kearns and Otto Harbach? Surely you wouldn't be dumb enough to admit you don't know they wrote the music and lyrics for "Show Boat" and "Sweet Adeline." The new First National musical comedy is meant for Alexander Gray, who is the white-haired child at this studio. If you have good taste for him, it seems, so it behooves all of us to keep one eye on him.

BERNIE FINEMAN is back with Paramount. He sends a telegram from New York to tell me that he is staying in New York to supervise Helen Kane's picture. Bernie is the lad that bossed "Sweetie" before the new contract. Al Green will direct this picture. The story of Al Green is one of the most interesting in pictures. For years he was one of the best-known directors, then suddenly he faded in ries of flops. Warners, against the advice of many, put him on the direction of "Disraeli," and after "Disraeli" turned out to be one of the finest pictures of the year, Jack Warner was in addition to say, "I told you so." Al will only make one picture for Paramount, returning to Warners on a long-term contract which goes into effect March 1.

MARRIAGE these days seldom interferes with a woman's career, and why should it? Bess Meredyth returned from a two days' honeymoon to begin work on "Romance," Greta Garbo's next picture. It was generally thought that Sydney Franklin would direct Miss Garbo in the play which Doris Keane made famous on the stage, but Irving Thalberg, it appears, had other plans for Mr. Franklin. He is to direct Norma Shearer in "The High Road," a Frederick Lonsdale comedy. Meanwhile, Clarence Brown, who finished "Anna Christie" with Greta Garbo, and on whom Goldwyn-Mayer pins their entire faith, has been assigned to do "Romance." Mr. Thalberg and Brown isn't interested you should see him walking about the M. G. M. lot with the book of "Romance" under his arm.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Mrs. Blanche Alexander, 70 years young, emulating Madame Pompadour and receiving a film group in her boudoir. Her granddaughter, Blanche Sweet, chaperoning her while cutting her birthday cake. Adela Rogers Landland and her husband, Dick Hyland, back from New York. Clara Bergere arriving home to spend Christmas. All of Hollywood going "Arty" and bidding at the Ross Shattuck exhibition of his paintings. Hoot Gibson carrying home one of the paintings as did Reba Daniels and Sally Eilers. Ralph Blum taking his wife to look at his new offices in Hollywood. Carmelita Geraghty being congratulated on her stage work. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

COAST-COAST SHOW AT MET

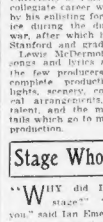
ON the stage of the Metropolitan, starting tomorrow, will be presented "White Caps," the first Publix coast-to-coast presentation to be devised and staged by Lewis W. Mc-Dermott. The director came to the New York production department of Public Theaters after an unusual success on the West Coast and in Chicago with Rainbow and Katz. He attended the grade and high schools in San Francisco and then entered Leland Stanford University at Palo Alto, Cal. His collegiate career was interrupted by his enlisting for military service during the duration of the war, after which he returned to Stanford and graduated in 1920.

L. W. McDermott

Lewis McDermott has written songs and lyrics and is one of the few producers who has the complete production, including lights, scenery, costumes, musical arrangements, selection of talent, and the many other details which go to make a finished production.

Stage Who's Who

"WHY did I go on the stage?" "Well, I'll tell you," said Ian Emery, who has a leading role in the current mystery drama, "Murder on the 2nd Floor" at the Copley. "It was probably in the blood. My father and mother were both actors and the Emery theatrical lineage goes back to 1720. In fact there has been an Emery on the stage ever since that time, so when I chose the stage as my life's work there was ample background for it.



Ian Emery

Funny thing but father and mother had decided long before I knew anything about it, that I was going to be an actor, but an English army officer. I was sent to military school, finished my course, and was about to be embarked in the army for life, when I as suddenly decided the stage was to be Ian Emery's fate as had been that of the long string of other Emerys. Yes, I was forgiven."

Ian's father, Edward Emery is a well-known actor both here and abroad. His mother, the former Georgie Waldron, was an English star in her day.

CHARLES KING IS PINING FOR CALIFORNIA

IT was his great, big, genial smile that won Anita Page and a million movie fans for Charles King in his first screen appearance and great singing success, "The Broadway Melody." "Broadway always wears a smile," Charlie sang. And whether he's singing to you across the footlights or talking things over with you back stage, there's the same infectious and boyish grin, the same genuineness, the same charm that keeps his audiences begging for more. Between two of his four daily appearances at Loew's State this week, Charlie took time out to digress on Boston and Hollywood, long skirts and golf, talking pictures and Marion Davies, and perhaps just a bit more earnestly about the three little Kings and their mother who are counting time until daddy's home.

Charles King

"I can't figure out why Boston acquired the reputation for cold audiences," King said. "Everybody's been more than cordial, my audiences and all my friends here. Why, everybody's so anxious to show a fellow a good time, it's a tough job to find time to sleep!"

Charlie was a bit non-committal about long skirts. "They look nice, all right," he admitted, "but short skirts are a lot more youthful.

He likes golf and California. "It's a great place for the kids," he said. And then he let us in on the 1929 King Christmas card, which has all five Kings smilingly wishing you holiday cheer and lots of it. There are 1500 of them to be addressed, and as Charlie's going to do them all himself, that makes another big job for one already very busy young man.

According to Charlie, if you missed Marion Davies' last picture, "Marianne," yours is the loss. He thinks Marion is one of the most clever screen artists and perhaps it's greatest comedienne. Which she's a wonderful woman, too, everybody in pictures sings her praises as a good pal and as a square dealer. Some she's mentioned—and that's a lot of times," he added.

And so Boston's a great town, and the talkies are here to stay. But the best part of the entire jaunt now is that Pacific Limited that's leaving next Monday for the west coast. Charlie's been living now for six weeks between his last and his next picture, which will be called "Happy Days," and which we're all going to have the chance to see soon. It's been a delightful two-by-four acquaintance face to face again, but it's going to be mighty sweet to be home for Christmas!"

And that's not hard to understand, either.

SCREEN STARS VERSATILE

SCREEN stars learn other film trades besides their own. Most of the reigning favorites of the films, if they suddenly found they couldn't act any more, could make successful livings right in the fields in callings they've followed as hobbies around the studios while acting.

For instance, Lon Chaney would be able to make good money as a cameraman. As a hobby he's been filming "movies" for years with his camera, mainly of animals, celebrities, and even a play he produced and directed from his own story.

Buster Keaton, frozen-faced comedian with a mechanical turn of mind, is as good a projectionist as any in a theater. He has his own projection machine at home, has experimented with it for years, can take it apart and reassemble it blindfolded, and has run millions of feet of film with it.

John Gilbert was a director before he became a star, and could go right back to directing if he wanted to and make a success of it, judging purely by the films he directed in the past. Eddie Edwards, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedian, makes records as a hobby, and is very expert at that, enough so to hold down a job in the sound department with the best of the workers there.

Ernest Torrence, who likes to eat, drink and reassemble film as a hobby, would qualify as a cutter, and Eleanor Boardman, once an interior decorator, could be a set designer. Myrna Loy, she has often suggested effective settings which the studio artists have carried out.

SYMPHONY IN CLASSICAL OPENER

By MOSES SMITH

THE Boston Symphony Orchestra opened its Tuesday afternoon series of concerts at Symphony Hall in a "strictly" classical program. Serge Koussevitzky, having in mind a unifying principle for these concerts, as in past seasons, chose outstanding works of three great classical masters—Bach, Mozart and Beethoven.

The opportunity is thus given youthful people to become acquainted with the standard symphonic repertoire without being shocked by ultra-modern novelties. Similarly with those ancient or conservative souls to whose ears the very name of a Schonberg or a Hindemith gives offense. Both classes were well represented in the large audience —in fact, they were the audience.

This excellent plan of devoting a separate group of concerts to established masterpieces is rendered all the more effective in that the performances are usually the best of all the various series that the orchestra gives. As in the case of yesterday's program, which Mozart and Beethoven, Brandenburg Concerto, Mozart's E-flat major Symphony and Beethoven's fifth Symphony in C minor, the numbers are almost always chosen from pieces that have been especially played at regular pairs of subscription concerts and, in many cases, at Monday evening concerts.

It is consequently redundant to say the performances were all brilliant. The audience proved itself, but was not as enthusiastic as the quality of the performance merited.

SWEET SIGHS BY BLANCHE

BLANCHE SWEET, screen actress, is getting more than her share of mechanical adjuncts to picture making in her latest role of the screen.

She was made the subject of the first experiment in "photographing a laugh" by Bruhn, and then submitted to the ministrations of a fire department pulmotor, rushed under the camera and microphone in her role as the mayor's wife in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture in which she and Tom Moore are featured.

The pulmotor was used as the climax of a trunk episode and the sigh recording was also a part of this suffocating interlude. The story is a drama of New York night club life, as yet untitled, and is an original by Phil Dunning, who wrote "Broadway." Robert Ober wrote Charlie's part. Kelly are directing, and Sally Starr, Robert Agnew, Tenen Holtz, John Miljan, Wilbur Mack and others of note are in the cast.

Film Who's Who

HER sisters Polly Ann Young and Sally Blane, film actresses, helped and criticized and coached Loretta Young.

Loretta Young

Her mother, wife of two film daughters, also knew much about launching the third one, a vocation that had only been decided on at the very last moment. And of course she had managed Loretta when the latter, as child actress Gretchen, had appeared with Fanny Ward and other celebrities.

Miss Young has made bits in "The Squall," opposite Carroll Nye, and with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in "Fast Life" and "The Forward Pass." The last is now at the Fenway.

"METEOR" RUN IS EXTENDED

DUE to the unusually enthusiastic reception audiences have given its newest production, the Theater Guild will extend for a single week the Boston stay of "Meteor," the play by S. N. Behrman, which is at the Hollis St. Because of the regular booking for a fortnight beginning next Monday, under its subscription plan of the production, "Wings Over Europe," the Tremont Theater will house "Meteor" for the week beginning Monday next. The entire cast and production will be transferred to the Tremont for its third week in Boston.

Opening at the Hollis next Monday will be "Wings Over Europe," given the Theater Guild two productions running at the same time here.

As Guild subscribers are attending the performances at the Hollis this week, the entire seating capacity of the Tremont will be placed on sale to the general public tomorrow for "Meteor."

GRETA GARBO SAYS PLENTY

GRETA GARBO is establishing a new long-distance talkie records.

In her very first talking scene for her new picture, Anna Christie, Garbo made one of the longest dialogue scenes ever recorded, lasting nine minutes and using up more than 840 feet of film.

As the picture progresses, it developed that few scenes ran under 400 feet and several ran to the entire 1000 feet of film and sound track, the limit of the loading magazines. Other scenes will run full 10 minutes on the screen.

Clarence Brown is directing Garbo's talkie debut from Frances Marion's adaptation of the famous Eugene O'Neill stage play in which Pauline Lord created the role the Swedish star now portrays.

Williams Writing

Ben Ames Williams is working on an original screen story to be known, tentatively as "What Do You Say, Bill?" Fox will produce.

Viennese Actress Signs for Warner Bros. Studio

Darryl Francis Zanuck, associate executive of the Warner Studios, has signed to a long term contract an European actress whom he considers the greatest star discovery ever made for the talking screen. Her name is Lya Lodi and she speaks seven languages fluently.

Although Miss Lodi is native of Vienna, Zanuck found her singing in a Budapest cafe where she has been the reigning performer this season. She is nineteen years old and is described as possessing beautiful features, a perfect figure and a dynamic personality.

New Chaplin Comedy Is Nearing Completion

Charlie Chaplin "City Lights" is half completed. It will be synchronized with music and certain sound effects but there will be no talking. The heroine of the story is a blind girl who recovers her sight. Charlie is, as ever, the tramp, he who gets slapped, the funny little man, the personification of human bewilderment.

The film will be released by United Artists during 1930.

"Journey's End"

Colin Clive, who created the role of Capt. Stanhope in "Journey's End" on the London stage, has been selected to play the same role in the talker version of the play, which James Whale is to direct for Tiffany.

'LOST CHILD' CRANKS IRK STAGE STAR

TO Madge Kennedy, stage star, goes the somewhat doubtful honor of being claimed as a relation by more people than any other person in the world. Madge Kennedy, somehow or other, is the claimed as the missing member of at least three-fifths of the families who are troubled by desertion. It just seems to happen. Perhaps it's fate.

Madge Kennedy

The invigorating, delectable Miss Kennedy hasn't any idea of why or wherefore. But she tells some peculiar tales about it all. She is appearing this week at the Keith-Albee in a one-act playlet, "The Red Hat."

"Time and again," she says "I am met at the stage door by folks who assure me that I am a long lost member of the family. Sometimes they are so sure that I am almost convinced myself."

It may be her good Irish name which is partly to blame. For interviewers insist on printing stories telling her eyes are blue. In reality they are brown.

"In two instances," she relates, "I have received long letters accompanied by full page newspaper articles with the appropriate pictures from old ones. Both were impassioned pleas, that I, as their daughter, return and forget whatever fame and fortune I gained on the stage. They were so serious that it was a bit pitiful.

"Besides, what would my real parents have thought of me?" And that hasn't been all, Miss Kennedy admitted.

"I have had several 'mothers' at stage doors," she admitted. "They were all convinced that I was the long-wanted daughter who had disappeared years ago. It was actually painful to try and persuade them.

"But some of it has been really funny. In the middle of a really tense scene one night, a benighted gentleman leaped wildly on the stage with a huge box of candy in one hand and a still larger bunch of flowers in the other. Before a startled audience he confessed that I had been his 'spirit' wife for five years and that he had at last come to demand me in the flesh. Being dramatic through the rest of the play was like being dramatic at a burlesque show."

Synchronizing "Fables"

Carl Edouarde, musical director of Aesop's Sound Fables, is rehearsing music and effects for the synchronizing of two Pathe of the plays, which are "A Close Call" and "The Night Club."

Power Stock Scheme Hits Public Purse

By M. L. RAMSAY

(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service)

Washington, Dec. 11—An attempt of the Alabama Power Company to write $8,000,000 of stock, allegedly "water," into the "cost" of Alabama hydro-electric plants, was revealed today.

Behind the company's claim is a hundred-fold increase of share capital, swelling capitalization overnight by 9900 per cent, effected in a merger 16 years ago.

These facts are shown in Alabama Public Service Commission records of a cost and valuation study made in co-operation with the Federal Power Commission.

If the company's attempt succeeds the $8,576,500 will become part of the price the federal government or the State must pay if either takes over the company's plants in future under the right of recapture contained in the federal water power act.

The water power that creates this current was given to the company free, under long term leases, by the federal and state governments. Ten years of Washington lobbying devoted to enacting the federal legislation effecting this gift, and securing its "reasonable" administration after enactment, was paid for in part by the Alabama Power Company.

CHARGED TO TAXPAYER

The cost of the lobbying is being charged up to taxpayers and ratepayers, like the stock, as part of the claimed cost of the power plants.

In the 1913 merger five embryonic power companies, owning half a dozen prospective power sites and rights for their development, were bundled together to form a single company.

All five of the old companies together were capitalized at only $99,500. The merger company—described by President Hugh White of the Alabama commission as "the same corporate entity" as the Alabama Power Company, one of the five merged—at once issued $9,975,000 of stock.

The merger agreement gave the impression that the new stock was issued to shareholders of the merged companies in payment for their properties. The portion to be received by shareholders of the pre-merger Alabama Power Co. was set down as $7,000,000. In its case this meant an exchange of stock in the ratio of 1400 shares for one.

Other records indicate that four of the old companies were bought cheaply before the merger, and that all of the new stock went to a newly formed holding company, sponsored by the merger promoters. One such record is a memorandum by Lamar Aldridge, Alabama Power Co. treasurer.

His memorandum and the merger agreement were tersely contrasted in an expression of opinion given at the Alabama commission's invitation by William V. King, chief accountant of the federal power commission, King wrote:

PROMOTERS PAID

"The inference to be drawn from the agreement is that the stock of the new corporation was issued to the holders of stocks of the old corporations, but we read that 'the stock issued through this consolidation found its way to Alabama Traction Light & Power Co., Ltd., a holding company.'

"At another place it is said that 'substantial considerations were paid to the promoters, bankers and others for their services during the years 1912 and 1913, for their part in the development of the properties.'

"Nowhere in the memorandum is it stated or alleged that the properties cost $9,975,000, or that any individual or corporation paid out that amount or anything approaching that amount, or that any services were performed having any such value.

"In my opinion the federal water power act was intended to prevent just such 'valuations' and inflations as apparently resulted from the consolidation in 1913, and so far as I am individually concerned I do not expect to approve the item of $3,500,000 or any part of it until the company in good faith turns over to representatives of the commissions for inspection all of the books, papers and records of the six companies."

The $3,500,000 referred to is that portion of the $9,975,000 stock issue which was charged to Mitchell dam, and hence is specifically at issue now.

Jailed Reporters Finish Sentences

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—Three reporters of the Washington Times, sentenced to 45 days in jail for refusing to testify before a grand jury investigation of liquor conditions here, completed their sentences and were released at midnight.

They were Jack Nevin, Jr., Linton Burkett and Gorman Hendricks. A sizeable crowd was waiting at the jail exit to greet the youths and news cameramen made flashlight photographs.

Trotzky Sued Over His Life's Story

Berlin, Dec. 11 (AP)—Leon Trotzky, banished Communist leader who is in exile in Turkey, has become the center of a trial here in which a Dresden publisher is demanding that he surrender manuscripts of his memoirs in accordance with contract.

Trotzky has refused to carry out the contract, because he learned the publisher had previously brought out a work by Alexander Kerensky, one-time Russian premier, in which Lenin and Trotzky virtually were accused of treason.

Unclaimed Fortunes Just Don't Exist

Washington, Dec. 11 (AP)—A warning to American citizens to avoid attempts of persons here and abroad to interest them in "vast unclaimed fortunes and estates" in England has been issued by the State Department.

Albert Halsted, American consul general in London, has advised the department that the alleged fortunes and estates which are claimed to be "in chancery" or in the hands of England awaiting disposition to heirs are non-existent.

SHE THOUGHT HER CASE HOPELESS

Yet ALL-BRAN Brought Relief Almost Immediately —No Trouble Since

When constipation once gets a grip on a person, it is almost impossible to relieve it, let alone prevent it with drugs and treatments. But here's a lady who was freed from her suffering—read her letter.

"Mine was an extreme case of constipation and although I had tried about everything that was recommended to me, I had almost given up hopes of ever being relieved.

"One day I came across your advertisement, so I thought I would try ALL-BRAN. It relieved me almost immediately and I have had no trouble since, which was almost three months ago."—Mrs. E. E. Leslie, 2104 Lyman St., Flint, Michigan.

Your system must have roughage or bulk daily, otherwise constipation is almost inevitable. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will supply this bulk. It is a healthful cereal to eat every day. Try use in cooked dishes or serve with milk or cream. To mix with other cereals.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation and to prevent it. Far better than pills and laxatives whose doses often have to be increased to be effective. Two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. It is 100% bran and is 100% effective. Doctors recommend it. Your grocer sells it. Served by hotels, restaurants, dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

[COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES]

Mrs. B's Devil's Food Cake

No church supper in a certain little Indiana town is complete without one of Mrs. B's devil's food cakes. So when the appetizing odor is wafted out of her kitchen, the children all gather 'round to learn if it's a cake for them, or only a cake for the church grown-ups.

Mrs. B uses Crisco in all her cakes because (she says) "it blends so quickly and thoroughly with the other ingredients. Crisco tastes for all the world like unsalted butter and it keeps my cakes moist and fresh as long as I can keep the children away from the cake box."

½ cup Crisco
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
½ cup milk
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1¼ cups flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons vanilla

Cream Crisco and sugar together. Add beaten eggs and mix well. Cook the milk and chocolate, cut in pieces, over a slow fire, stirring until thick. Cool. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt and add alternately with the chocolate to the first mixture. Add vanilla and beat thoroughly. Bake in 2 layer cake pans in moderate oven (350° F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Cool. Spread Marshmallow Frosting between layers and on top. Sprinkle with chopped nuts.

Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Co.

HOOVER REFERS TEXTILE CASE TO LAMONT

President Hoover has referred suggestions offered by Henry [illegible] Kendall of Boston, textile manufacturer, for changes designed to improve the textile industry, to the committee formed to help in the stabilization of business.

Word to this effect was received from Secretary of Commerce Lamont, to whom the matter was referred.

Kendall who is at the head of the [illegible] in New England and of five plants in North and South Carolina, submitted his proposals to the President with the suggestion that the present offered opposition [illegible] to [illegible] materials to [illegible] the conditions of the textile [illegible] which as you know have been very bad for [illegible].

In his letter to the President Kendall said the industry was suffering from two principal causes, [illegible] influences, style change [illegible] situation of excess [illegible] for cotton and increase in productive capacity due to operating [illegible] in late [illegible] which permit the working of women and minors at night.

Kendall said: "The action I would suggest would be to secure by mutual consent an agreement permanently reduce the women's hours per week to a [illegible] to not over 50 so [illegible] same weekly wage for 50 hours that was paid for 54, 55 or 60 whatever [illegible] and [illegible] to replace [illegible] left [illegible] women workers on the night shift and to replace [illegible] as far as possible [illegible] ing [illegible] workers on the night shift, with men."

Kendall said that his five mills in the South were compelled for competitive reasons to operate day and night and 55 hours a week on each shift.

"We have eliminated women entirely from one shift and successfully," he wrote the President.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

HUPP EXPLAINS THE COOLING PROBLEM

[illegible] engineers advance some interesting [illegible] how the [illegible] operate under exacting conditions [illegible] problem with certain car [illegible] says the Chrysler general [illegible] paper [illegible]

A [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

USE OF "CHOKE" BIG CAUSE OF MOTOR WEAR

The apparently harmless operation of pulling out the "choke" to overcome coughing, spitting noises on starting the automobile motor is one of the most dangerous things the motorist can do, says W. J. Connell of Boston.

This practice is common in cold weather, and some autoists leave the "choke" out for a few blocks, or until the engine gets sufficiently hot to run properly.

It is claimed that 50 to 75 per cent of all engine troubles are due to running cold engines. Over-"choking" causes raw gasoline to find its way to the oil reservoir below, diluting it and making it ineffective for its work of lubricating the cylinders.

As a result, spark plugs are fouled, carbon collects more rapidly and cylinder wear is increased at a tremendous rate.

To overcome these motor troubles these experts advise protection against cold at all times. They further advise automatic protection, such as the Pines Automatic Winterfront, which is a safe and sure way of obviating the major part of cold weather motor troubles.

This device covers the entire radiator of the car and automatically operates to keep the engine at the proper temperature.

According to scientific findings 60 degrees Fahrenheit is the danger line. At this temperature, all motors need protection from the ravages of cold. Due to the common human fault, forgetfulness, prominent automobile engineers have turned for the solution of this vital problem to automatic motor protection, a way that works positively, without thought or attention on the part of the driver.

Every motorist may have this same dependable motor protection by insisting upon the original Pines Automatic Winterfront—the only automatic radiator shutter on the market. Any make of car can be equipped in a few minutes.

AGE NO BARRIER IN CHEVROLET

Detroit, Dec. 11—"A man is as old as he works."

Today when youth is generally given the preference in industry, the attitude of the Chevrolet Motor Company toward older men and veteran employes presents an interesting views of some of the policies which have contributed to the growth and development of the Chevrolet manufacturing organization, says H. J. Walsh, Boston zone manager, Chevrolet Motor Co.

Man-power, the most vital factor in industry, its selection, management and productivity, has been a chief concern of Charles F. Barth, vice president and general manufacturing manager, who at 63 heads up one of the largest factory organizations in industry.

Commenting on the status of the veteran in industry, Mr. Barth declares that 'age is no barrier to employment and promotion with Chevrolet. We have drawn no age-lines in our organization. If a man is physically fit and disposed to do the work in mind for him he will receive favorable consideration regardless of his age."

LICENSE TAGS ON OX CARTS

The natives in the Central American republic of El Salvador have not yet adopted such modern transportation developments as stop lights, motor cops, traffic tickets, gas tax and no parking signs, but they are making progress—they require license tags for ox carts, says Dwight Brown, general manager, Oakland Motor Co. of New England.

Every one of the 22,000 ox cart chauffeurs in the republic must attach the little "traffic permit" to his creaking, three-miles-per-hour vehicle before venturing on the mud-paved Salvador highways. These tags are much smaller than American automobile license plates, being only 2¾ inches by 3 inches. This disadvantage is offset to a great extent, however, by the fact that it is possible for a pedestrian to follow a hit and run driver at an easy strolling pace and still "get his number." A brisk walker could even go home first and get a pencil.

How to Save Fuel in Traffic Told

It is the constant starting and stopping of a car, due to stop streets, stop lights and traffic tangles, that consumes gasoline unreasonably. If every driver would bear these facts in mind and endeavor when in traffic to keep under way as much as possible, he would soon find his car showing better mileage per gallon of fuel.

Always proceed slowly, in gear, when a traffic light a block away shows red, in order to still under way when the light changes. In this way the engine may be accelerated to pick up speed, without ever coming to a dead stop. By observing this very simple rule, a decided and, at times, surprising saving in fuel will be noted.

Under-Inflation Biggest Tire Foe

Under-inflation destroys more tires than any other single factor, according to the unanimous say of all the experts. It's wise to test them every Friday, to be ready for the week-end.

Air Romance, Better Than "Chickie"

What Has Happened

MARY PATRICIA DAWN beautiful, young brunette, meets the lad of her dreams in the person of Guy Elliott, aviator. Guy is developing a perfect air plane in the plant of old William Bryce. Happy days follow. Pat and Guy in love. Then comes Barbara Bryce, young widow of Bryce's son, with her seductive lure.

Pat's father dies and Mrs. Dawn gives her life savings to Bryce to invest, but Guy gets them back. Bryce stops financing the plane factory. Suddenly three persons vanish, Guy, Pat and Mrs. Bryce's little boy. A note is received demanding $20,000 ransom for the boy. The place where the money is left is watched by the police, but is taken mysteriously, presumed by the kidnapers. Guy is found and arrested, kidnaper of Bryce's grandson.

Now Read On

CHAPTER 33

THEY had trapped their man at the scene of the crime. They "had the goods on him"—had him "cold."

This man's dog carried the ransom box through the flume. His automobile had driven up Lafayette sq. and driven away again with little Billy Bryce. In this auto hairs of the child were found on the mat.

His plane was missing. He wore a brown suit and a soft tan hat.

The whole case was clinched, for the police, by the presence of a strong motive for the crime. On that very Monday morning their prisoner had an open quarrel with William Bryce.

In the presence of a score of men he had threatened to "fix Bryce and with dumdums." He knew the grandfather's love for the child knew that any menace to the boy would bring William Bryce to his knees.

To a police, goaded by public clamor, the proofs were conclusive. Guy Elliott had kidnaped little Billy Bryce, collected the ransom and then, in the very moment of triumph, had lost his nerve. Or he were involved, that other had magnificently escaped. Why should he bother to hand a ransom to his foe? Why should he pick on Guy Elliott?

Nonsense! They had their man. They gave accounts of the capture to the newspapers. They elaborated their theories.

Guy, they said had a confederate with whose aid he planned to put over the "perfect crime." They would use Guy's machine, Guy's plane, and would even carry off Pat to make it appear that Guy had nothing to do with it. No man would be stupid enough to so obviously turn suspicion on himself by abandoning his machine on the open highway. It would, of course, appear that Guy had been victimized; that he, too, had been kidnaped.

So the confederate had taken the plane, Pat and the child. He was holding them until certain that the ransom was secured.

Guy was to remain in hiding with the dog until the ransom was paid and possessed.

The two men would then meet. The ransom would be split; the confederate escape.

Pat and the child would be left to wander about. At the same time Guy, who of course wished to return to his home and his position, would reappear. He would arrive in this disheveled, incoherent condition and with the tale of his own imprisonment. The girl and the child would corroborate the story of the Mysterious Kidnaper—the Brilliant Phantom swooping down from the skies like a great eagle and carrying off men, girls, babies.

The abandoned plane, the machine and the return of Guy would give color to the story.

But something had gone wrong. Guy failed to make the get away. And the confederate, interested only in the ransom, still held the girl and the child. What this confederate might be doing to them—might already have done—no one could know.

This angle whipped public interest to white heat. A young girl and a little boy were held captive by a criminal—perhaps a fiend! What was he doing to them? The chance that Guy might have some inkling of their whereabouts made the public blindly infuriate. They aided the police in their efforts to break him.

The three detectives kept him sitting at that table in the captain's room, firing questions until he sank down limp and exhausted. With pitiless insistence they went back over the week of his alleged imprisonment; they extracted repetitions of his ride to the hills, on the night the ransom was taken.

He became incoherent. They gave him cupfuls of coffee and he sat, bending afresh. Hour after hour until he was sobbing with fatigue and weakness.

From their questions he knew that someone had stolen Barbara's

Terrier Six Will Battle Yale at New Haven Tonight

VETERAN B. U. TEAM FACES ELI ICEMEN

BOSTON UNIVERSITY'S varsity hockey squad of eleven players, the coach, and manager, will invade New Haven tonight in hopes of taking a fall out of the rugged Yale six

The Terriers were taken into camp by the Elis on the same ice by a 2-0 count after a hard-fought game a year ago in the opening game of the season but the local skaters hope to turn tables this year and have a good chance to do the trick as they already have a hard game with the University Club in back of them and should profit by the experience gained in that encounter

Coach Wayland F. Vaughan of the Terriers is a former Yale star, having played a defense position along side of Charley O'Hearn on the 1924 Eli sextet and is especially anxious to have his charges take a fall out of his old alma mater.

SAME LINEUP FOR B U

Vaughan will stand pat on the same lineup that started the last game, namely Leonard and Whitmore, wings; Currier, center, Bergholtz and Elliot, defense; and Grosberg, goal. The apes are making the trip are Arkin, Barron, Nelson, Barnsley, forwards, and Wesler, defense.

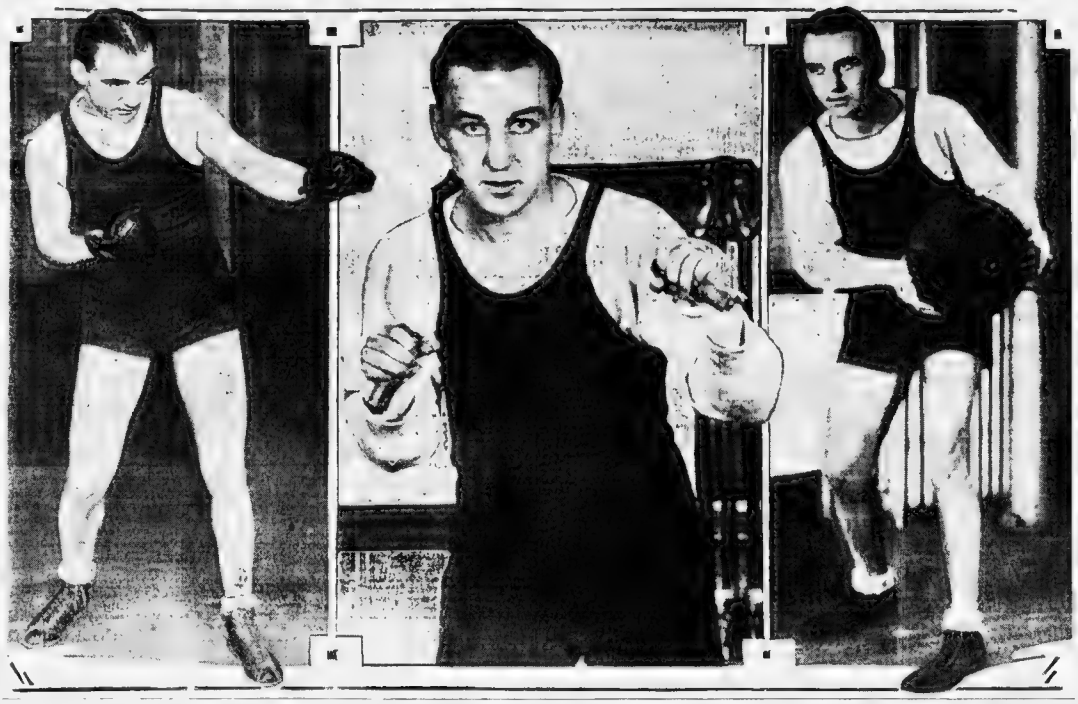
Buck Wesler, pitcher on the varsity baseball team, is the only member of the Terrier squad that did not face the Elis last year, and Bert Grosberg, in goal, is the only member of the starting lineup that was not a regular last winter. With such an array of experienced men in the lineup, the Terriers are well supplied with reserve players able to step in and readily with the best that Yale can offer.

YALE SIX STRONG

The Elis will probably present their usual powerful sextet, judging by the number of football players on the squad. No less than five gridiron stars will get into the game tonight, and one of these men, Wilson captaining the sextet. The others are McLernan, Hickok, Snead and Auden.

Pinky Palmer, veteran left wing high scorer, is back again this winter and will be the man to give the Terriers the most trouble. Once inside the defense his bullet like shots are almost impossible to stop and the B. U. defense of Elliot and Bergholtz will be called on to keep Palmer, and his shots at long range.

JACKIE FIELDS TRAINING HARD FOR BOUT WITH GORILLA JONES



$75,000 IS OFFERED TO FIELDS

A $75,000 offer for a title bout to be held at Wrigley Park, Chicago, under the direction of Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, added a new incentive for Jackie Fields of Los Angeles, welterweight champion of the universe to be at the top of his form, when he steps into the ring to clash with Gorilla Jones of Akron at the Boston Garden, Friday night.

The proposed bout is scheduled for July and Fields' opponent will not be named until two months before the bout and, while the champion has thus far failed to sign any agreements, there is little doubt he will accept this offer, for Fields admits that he is ready to defend his newly-won crown with 30 days notice.

Fields, who will receive a record guarantee for his bout here with the hard punching Jones, is almost certain to set a new record among welterweights for gaining capacity before he finally gives up the crown, for yesterday witnessed the receipt of another record offer for Fields.

Ansel Hoffman, California promoter, signed the champion an offer of $75,000 to meet Al Corbett in a non-title fight on February 22. So anxious is the California promoter to clinch this bout that he is now on his way to the Hub and expects to clinch the match upon his arrival. Without doubt, this is the largest guarantee ever offered for a non-title fight in the welterweight division.

The champion put on the pole of Sam Cox yesterday, when he spent more than an hour at the Tech Local Hospital, Brookline as Weigel went down with toys and candy. Fields brought sunshine to scores of these youngsters who will be forced to spend Christmas on hospital cots. Accompanied by Gig Rooney, his manager and Fred Marek, matchmaker at the Garden the champion was late for his training session, so interested was he in the talk of the kiddies at the Hebrew institution.

With an eight round semi final between Buster Brown of Baltimore and Frankie Moore of the North End, and seven four-round bouts also on the card, the show is expected to prove one of the best of the year.

Charles F. Adams, president of the Boston Bruins, said it was [illegible] he had heard of the matter, but he would give it due consideration until he had given it consideration. "You can say, as far as the Bruins are concerned," he said, however, "we are satisfied with week nights."

Sheldon H. Fairbanks, general manager and president of the Boston Garden Sporting Club, Inc., expressed his approval of the proposed bill.

He said he believed that it would give more personal opportunities of tennis, hockey, both amateur and professional and that he felt it would be an aid to increasing the attendance at basketball matches.

George V. Brown, president of the Boston Tigers, declared that the proposed provision would furnish an opportunity for many amateurs to play, which have not [illegible] chances now. He said [illegible] hockey devotee now would be use the Boston Arena for hockey practice sessions, but that under present conditions they are unable to all do so. "I think it would be a fine thing if Boston could get Sunday hockey," he stated.

Prominent basketball officials were for the most part, [illegible] last night but among followers of the game the proposed change met with much approval.

Charges Against 'Big 10' Members Made

CHICAGO, Dec. 11—The first of a series of counter-charges of subsidization of athletes in Western Conference schools, following in the wake of Iowa's failure to gain reinstatement in that athletic circle, have been unloosed.

Two affidavits were published in the Chicago Daily News today, charging Illinois University and Coach Bob Zuppke with having violated the conference rules governing subsidization of athletes.

The affidavits were published in behalf of Dr. Harold Barnhill, Decatur physician, purporting to show that Frank Baker, star Northwestern University end, and Elmer Marek, former Ohio State halfback, were [illegible] financial aid, directly or indirectly, by the Illini coaching staff.

Maj. John L. Griffith, athletic commissioner of the conference, said he had been given the charges several months ago and that the faculty committee had tabled both players and both institutions were not guilty of violating conference rules.

In the Marek case, the Cedar Rapids newspaper published an affidavit by Jess Hiakle, railroad company official at Cedar Rapids. Marek's father had informed him that his son held out for the most money" in selecting a school and that his father said his son had received the best offer from Ohio State, expecting to get $200 a month." Alongside the affidavit was a denial of such statements by the elder Marek.

Maj. Griffin said an investigation indicated Marek had been promised financial aid by certain Ohio State alumni if he would come to their school, but that after he enrolled he received nothing and was forced to work his way through school.

The second affidavit, bringing up the Baker case was made by Charles D. Hadlock of Chicago, who said Baker had boasted to him that he was given free meals by an Evanston restaurant. He would get checks like other patrons, Hadlock said Baker told him, but turned them in without paying for them.

Maj. Griffith said Baker's statement had been investigated and that it was found he was working for his meals in the restaurant, and that "he was unquestionably honest."

"All the charges against these two men have been passed by me over to the conference faculty committee," Maj. Griffith explained.

The threatened revolt of Iowa against the present administration of the University of Iowa for its handling of the Hawkeye campaign to gain reinstatement appeared to have fizzled today. The state board of education unanimously adopted a resolution pledging its faith in President Walter A. Jessup and the university board in control of athletics.

DE GLANE READY FOR DE VITO

Mat fans of the Hub have applied their stamp of approval on Henri Detlane, heavyweight champion of France, as an opponent for Joe De Vito in the feature bout of Paul Bowser's big all star card at the Grand Opera House Thursday night. This pair of tough and rugged customers ought to go to finish with two out of three falls deciding the winner.

Detlane jumped at the chance to engage the Italian champion, as he claims to have been seeking a go with De Vito ever since they posed for the Frenchman's pictures to get as rough as De Vito might care to be and has announced he expects to defeat the rough "bad boy" from Italy.

There is another attractive bout on Bowser's card, one that will give Ed George, champion of Michigan, a chance to prove his worth as a wrestler He is to tackle Frank Yusko, the South Boston star.

George has proved a sensation by the manner he has dumped his opponents in recent bouts and seems upon his way to be a formidable menace to the world's champion.

Promoter Bowser is now busy lining up two other highly attractive bouts and expects to be due to announce names of the principles shortly.

Schoolboy Five Beats Springfield

Springfield, Dec. 11 (AP)—The Arnold school five of New Haven, Ct., registered a distinct upset when it defeated the Springfield College varsity basketball quintet 24 to 22 in the latter's gymnasium tonight.

The contest, the opening one of the local season, saw in use for two quarters the suggested method of putting the ball in play after a point or points at the end line.

Five Big Bouts in All-Star Mat Show at Mechanics

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

M'MILLEN TO MEET HAGEN IN FEATURE

ONE of the greatest all-star wrestling cards presented to New England fans in years will be put on by Bob Axelrod at theMechanics Building tonight. Five bouts, featuring some of the most brilliant grapplers in the world, are listed for the attractive program.

The main bouts, two out of three falls to a finish with no time limit, brings together Jim McMillen, the former University of Illinois All-American football hero, and George Hagen, 200-pound Brooklyn boneman. These two, each famous in his own right, are considered the most sensational performers to be seen in the ring in the national mat feuds waged around these parts in many months.

Tonight's battle will be the stern est test McMillen has encountered since he embarked upon his professional career four years ago. Hagen, who will go into the final bout a slight favorite to dispose the victor, has met and defeated some of the world's finest, including the brilliant George Calza, the idol of the Italian sporting public. It was the Brooklyn strong man who broke Calza's right leg in Chicago last year.

The semi-windup between Jimmy Londos, the Greek champion, and Joe "Bull" Komar, the Battling Lithuanian, also promises thrills galore for those who troke in the warm and comfortable Mechanics Building. There is much rivalry between these two outstanding heavyweights, and a bitter argument is anticipated. Ritchie Flandolph, who engaged Komar in a lively little scrap of their own two weeks ago, will again be the third man in the ring.

The third match finds George Calza, the Italian titleholder, doing battle against Buck Olson, the giant and brilliant Swede from Minneapolis. Olson should offer Calza much more opposition than the Italian has had in his last two matches here.

In the second number of the program the latest Russian sensation, Ivan Demetroff, will be making his first New England appearance against that mountain of the mat, Hans Steinke, recognized as one of the greatest wrestlers in the game. The opening match introduces Fred Mazzulla, Harvard law school student, and Joey Leahan of Cambridge, two middleweights.

SCHANG TRADED FOR HALE

New York, Dec. 11 (AP) Wally Schang, veteran catcher, was traded today by the Yankees to the Philadelphia Athletics for Sammy Hale, infielder. Schang will return to the club with which he entered the major leagues as he caught for the Athletics from 1913 through 1917.

'H' Yearlings Report to Garden Today

Lawrence O. Pratt, newly named coach of the Harvard freshmen hockey team, met a large squad of first year embryo stick wielders in their first workout in the Garden today.

Pratt is no stranger to hockey fans around Boston. He was once a teammate of Clarence Owen in 1928, when he played defence for the Cantabs. Following his graduation from Harvard, Pratt played on the University Club six.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

Recently the expression, "You peeped on that one," has gained vogue and I'll say this is a far more comprehensive term than "looking up." In this the golfer puts into words just what happens with a good many of his shots. It expresses the habit you so readily acquire of partially looking up—or, much better, of your habit of letting your mind get ahead of your swing by wanting to see the ball in flight a thousandth of a second or so before the clubhead has swept it away. That's "peeping." This is one factor in golfing that you must school yourself to be on the alert for, because the habit creeps into your playing and will continue for weeks or months without your suspecting that it is the cause of inaccurate shots and scores which credit might be 10 strokes that were, as you think, sheer waste during the round. You feel that these extra strokes somehow should have been avoided—your game seemingly is better than the card indicates; you watch that partial looking up habit and you will avoid them.

MR. BOSTON by JACK CONWAY

Jack Conway

"PHIL SCOTT, British heavyweight champion, was paid $17,500 for less than four minutes of boxing at the Garden the other night," said Mr. Boston today. "Otto Von Porat received $12,500 for stopping a few punches and then driving a left hook low. Not bad compensation for a round or — Dollars!

"The show drew a net gate of $85,000, which was practically a sellout. The gang went expecting to see a fight and was disappointed. It was the general opinion of the crowd that Jack Sharkey could have polished off both Scott and Von Porat in the same night inside of five rounds. "Since the Boston contender flattened Tommy Loughran, even New York admits that Sharkey is quite a fighting person.

"The Garden had hoped to match the winner of the Scott-Von Porat mill with Sharkey. The sorrowful ending of the show spoiled that.

"It now looks as though Sharkey's opponent for Miami would be either Victorio Campollo, who is on his way back to the United States, or Tuffy Griffith, who is batting Jawn Risko at the Garden on Dec. 20.

"ALL Scott and Von Porat proved was that neither of them will ever become heavyweight champion of the world. Give the average heavyweight time and he will eliminate himself from title consideration.

"FRANK BRUEN, general manager of the Garden, who has just returned from Miami, says that Florida expects more visitors during the coming winter than ever. He declares hotel reservations are heavy and that the influx of winter visitors to Miami are bringing top rentals. He told me that the big question in Miami is as to who is to battle Sharkey.

"THE ten-round bout between Jimmy McLarnin and Ruby Goldstein at the New York Garden on Friday night will be a sellout. They are getting $12 top for this show and there is a wild battle for choice seats.

"ANDY CALLAHAN, Lawrence Thunderbolt, will appear against Kid Kaplan in the 10-round semi-final. Callahan is one of the busiest punchers in the lightweight class and is expected to prove a riot in his New York bow.

"JAKE ZERAMBY of Lynn, who recently furnished a sensational tussle with Callahan, has been signed by Matchmaker Tom McArdle to box 10 frames at the New York Garden on January 17. Zeramby has been sought by McArdle since he licked Andy Boutis and Bruce Flowers. Zeramby's opponent for his New York tussle has not yet been named.

"Zeramby will aim for a shot at Al Singer who is one of the best box office attractions in New York. If Jake can win a couple of tussles in New York, he will get a shot at Singer.

"HENRY LAMAR, who has started training for a ring comeback, will also make an early appearance at the Garden against some first class heavyweight. The scarcity of good attractions in New York has caused Tom McArdle to go to New England for ring prospects.

Chocolate Kayoes Silverberg in 1st

Silverberg was no match for the redoubtable Cuban. Soon after the opening bell, Chocolate tore into his rival with both hands. A hard right caught Silverberg flush on the jaw, and he went down to be counted out after one minute and 12 seconds of fighting.

GARDNER GETS SWIM MEET

Schoolboy swimmers splash for the Lieut. George Meehan swimming championships at the Greenwood Memorial Pool, Gardner Mass., on the afternoon of Saturday, March 15. Ben Levins, chairman of the N. E. A. A. U. swim board, has announced

This is the first time that the meet has been awarded to a city in that part of the State. N. E. A. A. U. swimming committee decided to stage the meet in Gardner to further the interest in schoolboy swimming in that section of the State.

Gardner, Whitinsville and Worcester have developed many fine swimmers during the last few years, and have done a great deal for the sport by their active interest in the A. A. U. competition.

The Gardner High School Athletic Association and the N. E. A. A. U. are working to make this meet the best in the history of schoolboy sports.

This early announcement of the date of the meet gives local schools a chance to make allowance on their schedules for the meet.

The School Department of the City of Boston already has promised the New England committee its fullest co-operation.

The following events are to be contested. Relay race; fancy diving, 50 yards free style, 100 yards free style, 200 yards free style, 100 yards backstroke, 100 yards breast stroke.

Husky Five Plays Providence Tonight

Although Providence College retains all but one member of last year's quintet that won 17 out of 21 games, Al McCoy, Northeastern's new coach, believes that the Huskies may win their opening game at Providence, tonight.

Seventeen varsity players will make the trip, while a large number of Northeastern students and a band will root for the Red and Black. Great preparations have been made in Providence for the game at Infantry Hall, and a lively game is expected.

Providence is expected to start Krieger and McCue, forwards; Wesler, center; Gafner and Szydla or Smolensky, guards.

Grid Coaches Have Different Names

There is some similarity in the football coaches of Illinois and Michigan. Both gentlemen's names end in "pke."

But the difference is that Zuppke isn't worrying about getting fired and Kipke is.

Hockey Notes

By BILL GRIMES

APPARENTLY the colleges and amateurs are perfectly satisfied with the rules which govern their game, for they refuse to follow the example set by the professionals as regards forward passing.

In some quarters, the fans are of the opinion that Mike Redden was most unkind to the old shinny game when he referred to the present professional game as "Gorried Shinny."

Although the fact that many of the Canadian players are protesting against the new rules does not carry any weight with the powers that be, it will be another story if the fans refused to ally themselves with the new game.

The Tigers have a chance to get back into first place of the Canadian-American League this week. They will battle the Philadelphia Arrows tonight in the Quaker City, tackle the Springfield Indians at the Garden tomorrow night, and wind up the week against Sprague Cleghorn's Rhode Island Reds.

Jean Dubuc displayed fine judgment when he secured Sprague Cleghorn to manage and coach his Providence team. The Reds have dropped five straight games since under Cleghorn they should swing into a winning stride.

Manager Cleghorn is well versed on the ability of his Providence squad, and within a short time he will have the Reds travelling at a pace which will soon have them back in the fight for the Can-Am title.

Although Pearl Conant has been a member of the Tigers for three years he has never started a game. Pearl will soon be back in the lineup, and Manager Eddie Powers firmly believes that the team will display a better brand of hockey as soon as the chunky Frenchman dons his spangles again.

Fans around the N. H. L. circuit are wondering over the collapse of Andy Blair of the Maple Leafs. Last season Blair was a great prospect but he has been a flop this year. Blair is a puck hog and therefore cannot look for success under the new rules.

Bill Shaver of the Can-Am League is on the referee roster of the N. H. L., but he has yet to receive an assignment. Shaver is a fearless official and the peer to many of the referees working under the big tent. If Pres. Calder is really anxious to bolster his department of officials, he should give some time to such men as Bill Shaver and Bill Stewart.

The N. H. L. added three new referees to its list this season, Odie Cleghorn, Herb Corbeau and Cy Denneneny, but there is still room for more improvement.

Hago Harrington has never forgotten the pass Sprague Cleghorn gave him against Toronto in his first N. H. L. hockey game. The piece of thoughtfulness on the part of Cleghorn, who was in a position to score himself, paved the way for Harrington to score his first professional goal. The announcement that Sprague was in charge and coach Providence was a most welcome piece of news to Hago Harrington.

Judging from their success up to the present, the New Haven eagles are a stronger outfit than the New York Americans. Yet, New Haven is the farm of the Americans.

Manager Lester Patrick of the Rangers is using only two sets of forwards, but has three pairs of defense men. Having played the present rules for years in the Western League, Lester probably has as good if not better idea of what they are all about than any one in the N. H. L. He fully appreciates the licking the defense men take, and is fortifying himself for the heavy going during the dash to the finish line.

Jackie Fields of Chicago, one of the headline boxers of the country, who meets Gorilla Jones on Friday night at the Garden, was among the spectators at the hockey game between our crack team and Pittsburgh.

Manager Frank Fredrickson of the Pittsburgh team was taken from the ice during the play of the first period. Frank suffered a twisted right knee and will be out of play for a couple of weeks.

Fredrickson was attended to in the dressing room by Dr. Joseph Shortell, club physician of the Bruins. Doc has a fond feeling for Freddie and was only too glad to help the former Boston player out of his pain.

What a front line the Bruins have in Dit Clapper, Cooney Weiland and Dutch Gainor! This trio should score plenty for the Rossmen providing there are no mishaps in the near future.

The Pirates looked pretty good to the 14,000 fans who turned out for the play. They also played in the game at all times trying their best to score and hold the Bruins down.

Hib Milks, Hal Darragh and Lowery were always on the go, playing good hockey and keeping their play together instead of picking out individual shots at the Bruins net.

"Red" Grange Finds New Way of Losing Bankroll

Chicago, Dec. 11—Red Grange, the once "galloping ghost" of college football, has turned to managing fighters. He has taken over the affairs of George Trafton, giant center of the Chicago Bears professional football team, and has directed Trafton's first challenge at Arthur (the Great) Shires.

St. Peter's Club to Hold Smoker

The Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. J. Splaine will speak at a smoke-talk to be held at the South Boston municipal building on Thursday, December 12, under the auspices of the St. Peter's Parish Club. Charles S. O'Connor, The Rev. K. Urbanavich, former pastor of St. Peter's Church, and the Rev. Jeskevits will also be heard.

Among those asked to be present are the Hon. James M. Curley, mayor-elect of Boston; John Dixon captain of the 1930 Boston College football team, and Joseph Kazlauskas assistant coach at Georgetown University. The program calls for wrestling and boxing exhibitions and miscellaneous entertainment features.

Southern California in Light Scrimmage

Los Angeles, Dec. 11 (AP)—In preparation for its game with Carnegie Tech here Saturday, the University of Southern California football team today went through a light scrimmage session on the practice program for the Trojans on the plays which the Pittsburgh team is expected to unleash in the contest with the California eleven.

The practice session was to include brushing up by the Trojans on the plays which the Pittsburgh team is expected to unleash in the contest with the California eleven.

Harvard 5 in Final Drill

With a final scrimmage in Hemenway Gymnasium, Harvard's 1929 basketball five wound up preparations for their opening game with B. U. this Friday.

Wachter the captain coach expects a tough battle from the intown collegians and will start his strongest five against the Terriers.

The Harvard team will have Capt Howie Wenner, Jud Rex, and probably Tommy Nido on the forward line, while Pooch Mahady and Sam Rubin are the likely starting guards for Harvard.

The Cantab basketeers have been improving steadily in scrimmage and Coach Wachter is confident that the five should be ready for the B. U. game. All five are showing fine basketball form, with Wenner, Rex and Nido having a slight edge on the rest.

It is said that this year's team at Harvard will be a far different club than last years quintet. Wachter is gradually developing his team's style, and Harvard expects to pull a surprise on B. U. when they meet Friday.

However the Crimson will show itself this year, and may sneak one over on the Crimson. The Terriers have been practicing steadily with an eye to taking the Cantabs into camp.

Friday's tilt will be the opening game for both clubs, and with each anxious to get off on the right foot, the court battle ought to prove a hot one.

The game will also see the introduction of the new rules of play which go into effect this season. This includes two important wrinkles which may cause some trouble at first.

According to the new rules, the practice of stalling for time by the opposing centers will be largely eliminated. Whereas they used to be able to jump for the ball on the tap-off, and then hold it for five seconds, forcing the referee to call for another start, this year the form of loafing is done away with. When a center once touches the ball on the tap-off he is ineligible to handle the ball until it has touched another player.

Coach Gildea to Hold Trials for Everett Trackmen

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

BROOKLINE ABANDONS HOCKEY

EVERETT high track candidates will be tested tomorrow for the first time when the boys stage a series of relay races. This being the first year Everett has had an indoor track team, it is necessary to get a line on the ability of the boys in the squad. Coach Gildea got one boy in each class, and made plans which led to the running of a little relay carnival, starting tomorrow.

The boys will have a lot of fun and the races give all a chance to show their speed.

Brookline has given up its hockey team this year. The Wealthy Town boys will concentrate on track. Some of the best runners of the school have graduated, so practically a new team must be built.

Fred L. O'Brien, East Boston high coach, has a young army of future Lermonds and Nurmis working out. The Noddle Island lads turn out for track in great numbers.

Henry Batchelder, Malden high track coach, has his boys training in the Malden Armory. The Blue and Gold trackmen face a hard schedule but there are a number of good prospects out for the team.

Two of the star football players of the unbeaten eleven are tossing the shot. The boys are George Poston, big tackle, and Max Winetman, end.

Charles Hall, another Malden high gridman is a hurdler and can force any of the schoolboys Allen Stevens and Al Prosperetti in the 440 are another pair of Malden boys who are good sprints.

Fred Shiver and Ben Rudman are the high jumpers of the Malden team. With these and other capable lads who are battling for places on the Malden squad, the Blue and Gold is likely to cop a championship in the class in the state meet.

Here is a list of the teams which Malden meets, in track and field: Huntington school, at the Boston Y gym; Lynn Classical at Malden and Medford at the Huntington Y gym.

Neither Medford nor Malden is satisfied with the home track of the school on Cross Parkway and Pleasant so agreed to hold the meet on a neutral track.

Following the meet with Medford, Lowell comes to Malden Rocketing also comes to Malden There is an open date in the Malden list after this. The indoor season ends up with the Andover, second meet, and the state meet.

Phil Joyal fine center of the Hyde A. C. is on a tear after the good ending job on the Maroon and Gold outfit. In addition to being fine center and bucket player Joyal is one of the strongest boys in schoolboy athletics. Concentrated attention to physical development exercises has made Flanchard a splendid specimen of young manhood.

WHITESIDE TO COACH 'H' CREW

Charles J. Whiteside, coach of the Syracuse freshman crew, which won at Poughkeepsie last June, has been appointed to the coaching staff of Harvard rowing.

He will assume his new duties on the Charles next week. This announcement was made by Wallam J. Bingham, director of Harvard athletics. He declined to say where Whiteside would take over the duties of head coach, resigned this fall by Edward J. Brown, but it seems practically certain that the next Harvard varsity crew will be tutored by Whiteside.

The new Harvard coach is a graduate of Syracuse University where he rowed for four years and was coached in Duluth, Minn. He is 28 years old.

Under the plan in vogue at Harvard the assistants of all rowing coaches are changed up in the same way and appointment to varsity or class work is made annually. Ed Brown, who has coached the last three Harvard varsity crews, still is a member of the staff but early in the fall expected to be relieved of varsity duties.

Smith Meets Wolfe in Billiard Match

Tom Smith of Wollaston will meet Dr B M. Wolfe of Boston in the first game of the New England Class B balkline billiard championship in the Twentieth Century Room, 63 Summer st, at 7:30 tonight.

Tomorrow night Jack Fortin of Brockton will play H. B. Weeks of Newton, and Friday Fred Hall of Boston and Roy S. Freeman of Dedham will meet.

Each game will consist of 150 points. The tournament is being conducted on the round-robin plan and next week a draw will be made Saturday.

Magnates in Favor of Shortening Season

NEW YORK, Dec. 11 (AP)—National and American League magnates assembled at the Hotel Commodore today for the second session of the annual maratnon talking contest, with the question of shortening the schedules the most important business before the two houses.

The National League yesterday went on record as favoring the shorter season, and a poll of the rival circuit showed the Barnard regulars also ready to make it unanimously upon a Sept. 28 closing.

The leagues today were reported to take up the question of broadening regular league games but this was also like the schedule matter unlikely to be finally decided only at the joint session tomorrow.

The chief item before the opening session of the two leagues today was that of requiring cash for purchasing franchises in small cities to make a formal report of any such transaction to Commissioner Landis, to the two major leagues and to the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Commissioner Landis put the question before the magnates, pointing out that since such reports were made of individual player purchases such action was no more necessary when an entire team of players was acquired.

The National League adopted a memorial resolution naming the late Col. A. G. Mills as president of the circuit in 1883 and 1884. Col Mills died at his summer home on Cape Cod last August.

The National League elected a directorate composed of Baines Dreyfus of Pittsburgh, Charles S. Stoneham of New York, William Veeck of Chicago and Emil E. Fuchs of Boston.

The shift of American League directors provided for in the consolidation brought into office Jacob Ruppert of New York, Robert Quinn of Boston, Alva Bradley of Cleveland and Charles Comiskey of Chicago.

BRUINS BEAT PIRATES, 5-4

The Bruins won again at the Boston Garden, defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates before a gathering of 14,000 fans by the score of 5 to 4.

It was a case of the under-dog Pirates battling the topnoteh Bruins in a game filled with thrills that kept the fans on edge throughout the 60 minutes of play.

The Pirates tail-enders and the Bruins leading the American division of the National Hockey League, paved great hockey.

The forward line of the Pirates, was Cooney Weiland, Dutch Gainor and Pat Clapper while the Bruins in the contest at all times throughout the night. Tiny Thompson, in the cage stopped the mad dashes of the Pirates and shots from all angles.

Eddie Shore, the Iron Man of the pro hockey pasters was not only fighting hard on the defense but was out front on the offensive attack when called on.

Pat Clapper went to the bull pen after two-thirds of the first period was underway for charging, and the remaining Bruin players were kept in hot water by the Pittsburgh Pirates. Eddie Shore, Dutch Gainor and Harry Oliver did some neat handling of their sticks to stave off the attack.

Action on the matter was tabled until Dean Arnold Bennett Hall is the number of cuts if any, Simuel is involved and a decision is expected tomorrow.

Twenty-two men were granted football letters: Captain Edwards, Nelson Munson and Jim Munroe winning their third letter in the grid sport.

The following were granted football letters: Varsity football, Capt. Clark Edwards, Nelson Munson, F. E. Munroe, P. A. Babcock, R. V. Cole, Joe Sousin, F. D. Gurli, L. Jacobson, W. J. Rogers, O. Sabo, A. G. Rose, M. W. Hill, K. A. Hepp, E. G. Hirsch, H. L. Hopkins, M. Mayhew, J. F. Anderson, P. K. Allen, P. F. Myers, A. P. Brooks, J. G. Sawyer, J. H. Hayward, Manager H. L. Post.

Billy Gleason to Manage Springfield

Springfield, Dec 10 (AP)—Billy Gleason of Holyoke was announced tonight by President A. J. Sheehan as manager of the Springfield Eastern League ball club for 1930. Gleason managed New Haven in 1925.

He played second base for Springfield last season and formerly played the same position for the St. Louis Browns and Pittsburgh Pirates, as well as for Memphis and Chattanooga of the Southern Association and New Haven of the Eastern League.

Hockey Coach Quits at Milton Academy

Bill Stewart, head coach of hockey at Milton Academy, has quit his position because of the pressure of business Stewart's duties as official and coach at Technology demand much of his time and forced him to give up his berth at Milton.

It is expected that a member of the Milton faculty will take over the hockey team serving as faculty coach.

104 OUT FOR B.C. TRACK TEAM

Coach Jack Ryder has one of the largest track squads working out daily that he has ever had at Boston College. There are 60 varsity candidates and 44 freshmen.

In the fall, Ryder has a large number out on the cinders, but usually when track is held on the outdoor board track the attendance falls off when the weather becomes cold. This year most of the candidates are playing out in spite of the cold.

At the present time Ryder is faced with the task of picking two varsity and one freshman relay team from the large number of runners.

The varsity has no meets in the winter and the yearlings only a few heats. Most of Ryder's training is limited to relay work, and a varsity one and two-mile relay, as well as a frosh one-mile team, must be picked to represent the college at the winter meets.

Last year the Eagles had a fine mile relay, but Charley Finn and Jack Woodworth, both of whom were members of this quartet, did not return to college and their places must be filled. Bill Mulcahey, who is captain of this year's quartet and is sure of his position again this year.

Joe McCabe and Bob Sullivan also saw service on the one-mile team last year and are prominent candidates this year.

Bud Pasquantonio, who was an outstanding sprinter on last year's frosh team, has been running well in practice and seems to be certain of gaining a berth. The coach has decided to hive him an opportunity to try the longer distance indoors.

Tom O'Brien, who was a member of the football squad, is another promising candidate for the mile team. Pasquantonio is a former sprinter, but can run a fast quarter.

Dan Larkin, who was also a football player is trying out for the mile team and has been turning in some fine times on the boards. Larkin was a member of the freshman relay team and that he hasn't sufficient credits to matriculate at Boston College. With some tutoring, however, he should be able to pass the Heights entrance examinations. This player is one of the most sought after schoolboys in the East. He has always been partial to A. A. and B. C. though and the Maroon and Gold football elevens are likely to benefit.

He was considered the fastest and best all-round back during the last schoolboy football season and was a unanimous selection on every "all-scholastic" eleven picked by local sports writers.

Pendergast should make an ideal college football player. He's still very young and is big enough to stand the heavy going. He's not a shifty back but goes through a hole like a bullet and can't be touched once beyond a scrimmage line.

TIGERS CLASH WITH ARROWS

Boston Tigers will start another stretch of intensive hockey tonight in Philadelphia when they meet the revivified Arrows of that town in the third game of the season's series. The Tigers already have beaten the Arrows twice.

The game will be the first of three in four days. Tomorrow night the Tigers will meet Springfield Indians in the Garden and on Saturday, the Providence Reds, also in the Garden.

Two weeks ago the Tigers had a similar schedule and Springfield got the break of meeting them the night after they had played Providence. This time the Indians will catch them on the rebound from Philadelphia.

The Tigers, however, have had a comparatively easy time of late and can be expected to weather two games in a row better than they did the last time when Springfield interrupted their winning streak by beating them, 2 to 0.

The Tigers have a good chance to recapture leadership in the league before the week is out, for they play three times in two for the league leading New Haven Eagles. At present the Eagles lead them by three points, on a game and a half and have played one more game.

Waltham High Grid Star May Enter B. C.

BILL PENDERGAST, the Waltham high school flash, is expected to continue his gridiron career at Boston College. It is very likely that Bill will don the Maroon and Gold, though he hasn't definitely signified his intentions.

It has been rumored that Pendergast would spend a year at Exeter and then go to Harvard But Pendergast was in touch with Joe McKenney yesterday at the coach's home regarding entrance requirements.

It is understood that Pendergast took a business course at Wal-

Montreal Dec 11 (INS) Aide by aide with the Ottawa Senators at the top of the international ground of the National Hockey League today rode the Montreal Canadiens.

Held to a 3-3 tie by the Detroit Cougars during the regular three periods of play here last night, the Canadiens skated into an extra period and, thanks to the stick of Howie Morenz, emerged to 4 to 3 winners.

Conacher's Solo Down Ice Wins for Americans

New York, Dec 11 (INS) Just how much Lionel Conacher means to the New York Americans hockey team had been proven again today.

The big battering defense man who also takes care of many offensive duties, staged a solo spin down the ice at the Garden last night to pop the puck into the net and provide the margin for his team's 1 to 0 win over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

An alert American defense forcing the fine play of this same Conacher, near the end of the third period.

On Verge of K. O.

Minneapolis, Dec 10 (AP)—Young Jack Thompson, San Francisco negro welterweight, defeated Billy Wells, veteran English battler in 10 rounds tonight. In which Wells barely averted a knockout.

UNIV. SIX HAS 11 GAMES

University Club hockey team, apparently the strongest ever organized, will play two game series at the Arena with Fusiliers of St. John, N. B and with the Moncton, N. B team.

The Fusiliers will play at the Arena on Jan 9 and 10 and the Moncton team on Jan 24 and 25. Both of them are strong representations of hockey in the maritime provinces.

The University Club schedule now has been arranged up to Feb 12 and includes 11 games, six of them at the Arena. Arrangements now are pending with Wolverines of Halifax and the Truro and Kentville teams of Nova Scotia.

University Club will travel to New Haven to meet Yale Saturday night and will play its next home game at the Arena on Dec. 20 with Harvard. Inasmuch as the U. C. lineup includes many Harvard stars of recent years this game will have a "varsity-alumni" flavor.

Games already arranged for the University Club team are as follows: Dec 14, Yale at New Haven; Dec. 20, Harvard at Arena; Dec 27, Dartmouth at Arena; Jan. 8, St. John at Arena; Jan. 10, St. John at Arena; Jan. 15, Yale at New Haven; Jan 24 Moncton at Arena; Jan 25, Moncton at Arena; Feb 5, Boston University at Arena; Feb. 12, Harvard at Garden.

It was Oxford's first victory since 1924. Of the 53 previous games Oxford won 23, Cambridge 21, and nine were drawn.

A crowd of 30,000 which witnessed the game gave the Prince of Wales an ovation as he shook hands with the players before the start.

This Day in Our History

THE armistice of thirty days between the Allies and the German powers terminated on December 11, 1918, at 11 a. m. The representatives of both sides, by conference at Treves, agreed to extend it to January 17, 1919. That was the last of the war.

DETAIL IS THE SECRET OF BEAUTY AND CHARM

Girls Should Be Dainty, Says Noted Expert

BY MARIA JERITZA

ATTENTION to detail is a secret of beauty and charm. You may or may not be blessed with the features, figures and grace of a Venus. But one attribute of charm and loveliness incertainly within your reach—you can be dainty! And daintiness, founded on strict personal order is a very potent feature of beauty.

Nearness is a sound like an old-fashioned quality, but its appeal rates just as high today as it ever did. A woman who works quickly can take her morning bath, clean her teeth, arrange her hair, dress becomingly and powder her face in the time it takes a slow, slipshod woman to don her slippers and dressing gown. Why not begin early in the morning to look nice? We are constantly presenting pictures to you of our appearance. Why not see to it that at all times the picture you present is pleasant?

Maria Jeritza

Run-over heels, untidy hair, soiled handkerchiefs and gloves, stockings with crooked seams—all these details give others a very bad impression and have a bad effect also on one's own self-respect.

An important item of your daintiness is your hand bag. I wonder how it looks without and within at this moment? A woman's handbag is likely to be an assortment of odds and ends—with powder puffs, lipsticks, rouge and compact, handkerchiefs [illegible] or less soiled, comb, doorkeys, address book, pencil, shopping list, handkerchief, letters [illegible] and everything the receptacle will hold and just a little more, it seems. Every day turn out your bag and see what can be thrown away or put away from its contents.

Nothing looks more untidy than a bag that is out of shape and neither ornamental nor useful, because it is almost impossible to find the one thing one happens to need from the jumble of miscellaneous articles. Keep in the bag only the [illegible] you use every day—the lining of your bag is constructed to be kept in the bag, but should be laid flat in a box.

Underwear and handkerchiefs should be kept fresh and clean and trim and there is no excuse for not keeping them so, because a set of "lingerie" for each person, consisting of one dozen undervest, two hand kerchiefs and stockings can be washed and ironed in 15 minutes at the end of the day.

Another 15 minutes will be needed to sew on buttons and make mendings wherever they are needed, to run a loosened shoulder strap, to sew a snap on a glove, to [illegible] your morning's costume into perfect condition.

Wear a frock after the bath and [illegible] clothes are marked with perspiration. Odors of perspiration can be eliminated by [illegible] a palmful of baking soda and one of borax in the daily bath, and also by use of one of the [illegible] deodorants on the market.

Listen, World!

BY ELSIE ROBINSON

IT'S a great education, running a column like this. People know [illegible] ing they need give no name and face no judgment—tell you amazing things about them selves. I have been at it for 11 years, and I've come to the conclusion that all people are more alike than they seem. . . . I feel that they all conceal within their unconventional exteriors a startling secret personalities.

Elsie Robinson

People resented me of little Ed- die Russell. I watched Eddie shuffling through my back lot this morning. He's an under-sized, freckled little lad, with squinty eyes, black teeth and no chin. At a glance you would not hand Ed much . . . but if you spent an intimate hour with him maybe you'd be sorry for the morning, for instance, you might have thought he was just another dinary kid, loitering among h the grass with a pound of butter for his ma. Whereas, actually, he was Deadeye Dick, ax fest tall and cursed in proportion with a trigger finger that was the envy of Western plains. Every six feet he'd stop, spin around on his heel, take aim with horrible [illegible] and in the tense silence which ensued you could just hear that butter go BANG, right in the middle of a redskin. With each shot Eddie's look of triumph mounted It was evident that he was leading a Full Life.

A "kid making believe?" No. There went the REAL Eddie. The Eddie the world sees will always be a rarity in detail, with back teeth and no chin. But Eddie hums if in a reckless swust on like, treading the wires with [illegible] [illegible] the boy in the world feels like that SO DOES EVERY MAN AND WOMAN. Only we've yet was a human being who didn't hold within himself the makings of a good hero, an explorer, a conquerer, an adventurer. These are not our IMAGINARY selves . . . they are quite REAL. THE SELVES WE MIGHT BE EXPRESSING WITH GLORIOUS VIGOR IF LIFE HADN'T LOCKED US IN.

When we started we believed that life was going to be a wonderful affair. We believed this, not because we were stupid, but because we had natural, unspoiled wisdom. Life might have been, SHOULD HAVE BEEN, a wonderful affair. We believed fairy tales because we ourselves were fairies with wonder and magic and we saw the wonder and magic in everything around us. We believed Jack and the Bean Stalk without question because that was exactly what we intended to do when we grew up. Already we could feel ourselves slimming up that prodigious plant, whooming that mean old giant.

We never did shinny up the bean stalk, we never did whack the mean old giant, because life locked us into our shells before we knew what was really happening. BUT IF LIFE HAD LET US BE OURSELVES, WHAT A WONDERFUL [illegible] WORLD WE HAVE HAD!

So we go through life, locked in [illegible] shells and the world sees our shells and judges us accordingly. But within those shells dwells none of the world sees . . . some one brave and reckless sensitive and lovely, vivid and compelling. The REAL you and me.

That's true, isn't it? You've always known it was true about yourself BUT DID YOU EVER GUESS THAT IT WAS ALSO TRUE ABOUT EVERY ONE ELSE?

Giving of Flowers

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

We are good friends. Her birthday comes in the near future and flowers, I have decided, will be my choice of remembering it, but which shall it be—a box of vari-colored roses (they are my favorites) one for each year, or just a bouquet of flowers? What would you suggest?

I want to tell you that I would not miss your column for anything as it certainly helped me out a number of times and I appreciate it. BOB.

WELL, now, my dear sir, that is a difficult question, for it is all a matter of personal taste. I'm afraid that I don't agree with you about vari-colored roses, even though your sentiment about each shade representing a separate year of her life. I like roses all of one shade; they seem to me much more effective and beautiful than at variegated shades. And most girls love the pale yellow roses that are especially lovely now. What do you think of sending those? Or would you be interested in the suggestion of having your florist make one of the charming old-fashioned bouquets of tiny flowers in pastel shades, tightly packed in rows? They can be most beautiful and seem so "special" a remembrance that it adds an extra personality to the gift. The entire bouquet is set in a "smart" paper collar and streamers of one shade or pastel shades are added. I think that some kind of corsage bouquet seems always more personal for a bouquet remembrance. If you don't like the chic little bouquet that I have suggested may be you'd like a spray of orchids (one or a sprays or gardenias either combined with lilies of the valley or violets.

I'm glad that you enjoy the column. Your kind words made me very happy. Do come again, sir.

If He Loves You, He Will Propose

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Not long ago I met with a wonderful young college man. He is very refined and intelligent and when he comes down to visit me he likes to come alone and he wants me not to have any girl friends down

When we are alone he only puts his arm around me. I can see that he cares for me a great deal. I like this type of young man; that is, one who doesn't pet. If he wanted a kiss, or the like, I would never have him come down alone to see me. Everything sounds good so far doesn't it? But, listen!

He keeps calling me girl chum up her. He told me he didn't care for her. I can't see through it, can you? I just can't understand men. My girl chum doesn't like this type. She likes the wild kind. What can I do under these circumstances? I would like to have him come down again. I enjoy his company more than any other gentleman's. I am sure he doesn't like any girl friend—he likes nice quiet girls like myself. What would you do, please, if you were me?

ALICE.

WHAT would I do if I were Alice? Well, for one thing, I would not talk over the "young college chap" with my girl friend or any other girl or young man. His coming to see you is your affair and his—not theirs! And do not pay much attention to anything other girls say about him.

Another thing: Just assume he is a good friend, but not in love with you. Why should he not go about now and then with other friends as well as with you? If you are sensible you will cultivate all your good friends also—both girls and young men! If ever the time comes when he is in love with you he will let you know soon enough by a proposal of marriage. And your friendship will be pleasanter and last longer if you refuse to be jealous or disturbed about his other friendships.

Nancy Page Quilt Club

By FLORENCE LA GANKE

A DIRECTION LEAFLET that will aid in making the Alphabet Quilt will be sent free to any reader sending a stamped, addressed envelope to Nancy Page, Boston American. P. O. Box 185, Boston, Mass.

THE surprised expression on Jack's face as he popped out of his box was mirrored on the faces of the quilt club members when they saw the pattern for the tenth block in the alphabet quilt.

They began to tell stories of the Jacks they had had in childhood. One member recalled other toys with springs with which she had played. There was the reptile contained in the simulated pot of jam. This snake uncoiled itself with frightened suddenness when the top of the jam pot was lifted.

This particular Jack was not difficult to applique since the spring and the face were expressed in stitchery. But the rest of the toy was done in applique.

The first step was the cutting of the square from the newspaper. A piece of soft, white gingham was cut with an allowance of one-quarter inch on all sides. This was laid over the newspaper pattern.

Then the two were held flat against the window pane. With a sharp, hard lead pencil the pattern and letter were outlined.

Then the paper pattern was pasted onto a piece of light weight cardboard or tag board and dried under pressure.

Nancy took her green embroidery cotton which she used for outlining the letters in the upper left-hand corner and worked the letter "J" with fine outline stitch. Some of the members used a fine chain stitch to give more weight to the letter.

While she was waiting for the pattern to dry she chose her other embroidery cottons. She was sure to use only fast color, washable ones. For the hair she chose yellow, for the mouth, rose. And for the eyes she used brown. The same brown was used to make the spring.

Now that the pattern was dry she cut it out with a one round letter for head, the two long pieces for arms.

The box was cut all in one piece. Where the arm extended over the edge she acted as if it were not there and did not cut the indentation left by its overlapping.

In cutting all the pieces she allowed one-quarter inch on all sides for turning under. She cut the face from pale pink, fast color soft gingham. The arms were from a figured green print. The box was a pink and white material with pink dots sprinkled over its surface.

After the edges were turned under and basted down the pieces were pressed.

She laid the box in place on the lead pencil outline of the white block. The box was appliqued with fine, slanting invisible hemming stitches. Then she appliqued the arms. The head went on last.

To get the effect of the box she used her brown fast color embroidery cotton and outlined the lines of the box as shown. It was the line from the front toward the right and the hinge line which needed to be stitched. The spiral spring was done in fine running stitch.

The eyes were outlined and the pupils worked in fine satin stitch. The mouth was done in satin stitch. The eyebrows were in running stitch. The hair was done with double strands of brown.

Miss Pat

child—that bright little golden-haired kid who had come up and given him a nudge and said, "You're wicked—you tell lies!" Someone had stolen Billy Bryce and sent word that the child was done away with.

He got up and leaned with his whole suffering weight on the table. He cried out:

"Great God—do they think I did this? Why would I do it?"

Half wild, he begged them to bring the mother to him. She would know that he hadn't and couldn't do this thing. He asked for Bryce Bryce, too, would know that Guy Elliott was incapable of the deed.

In these hours they kept from him the word of Pat's fate. When he became incoherent he called on Pat to vindicate him. He said softly:

"Pat—tell them ."

He lapsed into semi-consciousness with her name on his lips She would come rushing through whole world to clear him as he would have rushed to her

They would not let him sleep. Then he asked for friends . . . fellows who had gone to college with him and who would stand to him now.

Through the whole tortured night he told and retold the same story. The details were these:

He had been in a small room, damp, cold and poorly ventilated. He woke up there some time after that Monday afternoon. How long after, he didn't know. He had a terrific headache and felt dopy. He was lying on a mattress, stripped, but with a blanket thrown over him.

He tried to cry out, but the gag was securely fastened and the helmet kept it in place. He worked along the mattress, trying to loosen this helmet. After what seemed hours he got it shoved to the side.

This gave him some hope. He sat up, found that he had a certain freedom, and cautiously, the chain about his legs dragging, began to move about.

He shoved along the wall, feeling his way with his shoulder. He had a wild hope of coming upon a peg or a nail. On this he would catch the helmet and break the gag loose. Infuriated when a painful search revealed no means of accomplishing this, he began to fling himself against the wall. He made loud, thumping noises. The handcuffs and the chains rang.

Immediately someone spoke. To his astonishment the voice was a woman's:

"Stop that! One sound more and you'll be chained without an inch of free play. The noise is useless. We won't bring anyone to your aid. There's not a soul for miles. Joy and you'll be treated decently. Get this straight: You're being held for a purpose.

"The gag will be removed when you show that you understand resistance is futile. One outcry and the gag will be replaced. We have the power to enforce our will. Nod if you hear and understand. Nod twice if you are ready to comply."

The voice had a peculiar, metallic ring. It was low, but very definite, and the words delivered without hesitance.

Then he heard some one moving about with slippered feet. The voice came again

"I'm going to feed you now You're to sit perfectly quiet on the bench to which you'll be led If you make white thing gag is removed, you'll be simply and permanently silenced. That's all."

The person came over, shoved him to a bench and removed the gag

"Take the blind from my eyes"

He received no answer He was given soup and milk, pushed back in the mattress and a heavy blanket thrown over him.

Whether the person who did this was a man or woman he couldn't say. He thought it was a man But it was a woman who ordered

"Remember? Not a sound! Don't fling yourself against these walls I'm on guard. I've a pistol ready You'll be rounded out and no one will ever know what has become of you.

He was doped and his head frantically throbbed. After what seemed an eternity of restless tossing, he fell into a heavy slumber

When he awakened his captor was in the room with a bowl of milk, Without explanation the gag was replaced Slippered feet moved from him. All the movements appeared to be those of a man; the voice was always that of a woman

"Don't struggle Later the gag will be removed again."

This procedure was repeated endlessly. In the night, so he judged it, the gag was removed. In the day it was replaced

At first he felt certain that he would soon be rescued. He had friends who would leave no stone unturned to reach him; they would track him to the ends of the earth as he would have tracked them. His disappearance would be serious of course But the fellows who had accomplished it would surely have dropped a clue that would be found. He bore up in the will waiting for this

Then came the hour, after blind and now despondent days, whether day or night, he knew not, that his captor appeared and told him he would be released For the first time he was fed bounteously. The coffee had a strange, bitter taste He was thirsty and drank two cups.

The woman spoke:

"Tonight you will be released Unharmed. But follow orders Sit perfectly quiet while you are shaved and dressed. I have a gun and will use it at the slightest move. After you are dressed you will be led to an automobile. You will be driven to a certain place and freed. You will be safe if you obey."

The helmet and gag were removed but not the bandage from his eyes. He was washed and shaved A man, he felt certain, performed this office. While being dressed, his hands and feet were alternately chained to the bed.

Blindfolded and again gagged, he was led to a machine. It was driven, he estimated, about three-quarters of an hour. He and his captor then walked up hills. A man—he felt certain—this companion was.

They halted. His companion put hands on his shoulders and pushed him to a sitting position. He felt very sleepy, almost unable to move, and did not resist

The helmet and a gag were removed A handkerchief that smelled of chloroform was thrown over his face

This was all he knew until he awakened just before sundown on the following day. He was free.

But he had no idea where he was. He got up and tried to walk He was appallingly weak and very hungry. He could walk but a short distance when he was forced to rest.

He hoped to find the road. Night came on. He tried to fight off sleep, but it conquered.

Late on the morning of his discovery he awakened. He spent the day in futile efforts to find a road. He was hampered by a terrible dizziness—hunger and weakness. But above all by the insistent desire to sleep.

In the middle of the afternoon, like a miracle, like a thing of beauty so incredible that he fancied he dreamed, the dog had come upon him

He told the dog to fetch someone The dog returned alone Again he sent him forth

Then Ten Chee came And he was almost weeping with relief—was ready to fling himself on the man in sheer joy when the order to throw up his hands was given—

The rest they knew.

Pat listened to this They laughed at it. How finely in his two days in the hills he had worked out the fantastic details. Who was the woman—another phantom!

The next day—Monday, the Mrs. Taylor who had been the lodger of Billy Bryce came to the jail. She picked Guy out from a dozen men.

The Truth

ABOUT GOOD TASTE

By ELINOR GLYN

WHAT is good taste? Good taste is that subtle knowledge which enables you to perceive what does not jar, and what does not offend, what does not please the eye, ear, or understanding.

Elinor Glyn

Good taste is born in some people whose lives have had highly trained forbears. It can be acquired by anyone who cares to study and to cultivate the critical faculties.

For instance, I know a woman who rose from the humblest surroundings but who always longed for beauty, and spent her spare time studying models of perfect taste of the past, until she is now a highly paid art critic.

But in her search for specialized mental culture, she did not pay sufficient attention to personal good taste. The result is that she often offends her friends by her brusqueness and want of tact. Real good taste never offends the sensibilities of others.

One hears sentences like this, She had the good taste to refrain from joining us and so," or, "He had the bad taste to say such and such a thing."

The first sentence infers that some fine instinct was guiding the choice of action, and the second that the man blurted out some words which, if the instincts had been trained, he would have known it were wise not to say.

Girls, to acquire good taste, study others. See what it is you admire in them. Discover why you admire it, or if you disapprove of them, why you do so.

Sauces for Cold Meats

THE successful use of leftover meats depends largely upon the sauce in which it is served. Cold sliced meats are quite acceptable during the summer months and many prefer the chilly sliced cold rare roast of beef served "au naturel," but generally we like a good savory sauce.

Martha Lee

The sauce, somehow, takes away the chill of being served reheated food I am a great advocate of "cooking once" and "eating twice," and my large collection of sauces plays a real part in meal preparation for my family.

A successful sauce should be smooth, of good consistency, and flavored just enough to bring out the tastiness of the meat. There is nothing so lacking in appetite as a thick, pasty, colorless sauce. Strained left-over vegetables will help in overcoming this condition.

CREAM SAUCE

Cook together 2 tbsps. each of butter and flour, add 1 c evaporated milk and 1 c water Cook until thick, stirring constantly Season with pepper and salt. More or less liquid may be required, as different brands of flour have different thickening qualities.

SPANISH SAUCE

Fry in butter the onion drippings 1 tbsp. each of raw ham, celery, carrot and onion, all cut fine. Add 1 tsp. flour and cook 10 minutes. Add 1 c soup stock and cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add a pinch of salt, 4 peppercorns, a sprig of parsley, a sprig of thyme half a bay leaf, and a little mace. Simmer for 10 minutes, strain and serve.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

The Boston Evening American will pay $1 for published smart sayings. Address "Smart Sayings," Boston Evening American.

One day when my young nephew was coming home from school and it was growing hard, his coat was open wide and in his hand he had a paper bag.

A policeman came along and buttoned up his coat for him and said: "What have you in the bag?"

He answered: "I have my rubbers in the bag so they won't get wet."

MIDST LOVELY YULETIDE decorations, the debutante set, as well as a few of the younger married set and older people, danced to a well-known New York orchestra at the presentation dance given in honor of Miss Marjorie Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Evatt of Buckingham rd., Brookline, at the Longwood Club. Large wreaths ornated with red poinsettias and ribbons and garnished with the semblance of snow, gave a cheery atmosphere, as did the charmingly lighted Christmas trees that graced here and there. Mrs. G. Winthrop Brown, Jr., Mrs. Evatt's eldest daughter, was becomingly gowned in rose color, while one of her sisters, Miss Catherine Evatt, was dressed in a striking model of white flat crepe combined with gold cloth. Those who had attended the buffet dinner were wearing sweet corsages of Jerusalem cherries. The predominating colors worn by those in attendance were shades of red and pink. Miss Barbara Proctor's choice in frocks was mulberry moire, Miss Anne Sutton's a satin of bright red, Miss Beatrice Murray's a somewhat similar shade, and Miss Mary Ives a pink satin. Miss Kathleen Robinson was attired in a brilliant green as was also piquant Miss Kathleen Chase.

Miss Harriet White of Gloucester st. and Miss Dorothy Lawrence of Milton are active in Junior League and Vincent Club events.

Miss Harriet White Miss Dorothy Lawrence

MISS MARJORIE BORRICKE of Chicago was smartly frocked in white crepe. Miss Anne Barton, who was considered the prettiest of her season's debs, was charmingly dressed in a yellow chiffon, with a blending bracelet of gold worn over her long white gloves. A tight bodice and full tulle skirt of furia color was the costume worn was by popular Miss Edith Mitton. A frock short in front and falling to great length in the center of the back was worn by Miss Carolyn Day. Miss Marian Duane, whose debut was made last Saturday, was gowned in black, garnished with red flowers.

THE FRANCIS STERN NURSERY SCHOOL of Brookline is to benefit from the entertainment being held Friday evening at the Repertory Theater. Miss Helen Howe, noted monologist has been secured for this occasion. Miss Howe was born and brought up in Boston where she made her social debut and is a member of the Junior League. Being interested in the artricals, she studied both in Europe and at the Theater Guild School in New York. After due consideration she decided, that her natural inclination was monologuing, in which field she has made a great success, being much in demand all over the country. Eight Junior League girls are rehearsing at the recital. They are Miss Jane Strickland, the Misses Catherine and Priscilla Hedge, Miss Alice Sutton, Miss Virginia Hayden Miss Dorothea Greene Miss Frances Smith and Mrs. Gordon Dewart.

AN INTERESTING TALK BY Ida Vera Simonton on Soviet Russia was heard this morning at the Hotel Vendome. The speaker having studied and traveled extensively abroad, was well versed on her subject. Among those patronizing this affair, the proceeds of which are to go to the Massachusetts Public Interest League, were Mrs. James Cunningham Gray, Mrs. Harry H. Thorndike, Mrs. Frederick Cunningham, Mrs. Randolph Frothingham Mrs. Arthur Williams Mrs. Jean Davenport Hill Mrs. Wilbur C. Abbott Mrs. R. L. Robinson and a number of others.

DEPOSITS GAIN FOR CHRISTMAS CLUB FUNDS

By FRANK B. METCOY
Financial Editor

Deposits for Christmas Club funds in Boston banks show some interesting increases, with their average in the

Roy A. Hayes

(Photo by Pease) total 142,222. For some unexplained reason the average per member has dropped each year. In 1927 the average Christmas saving per member was $37.11 in 1928 it was $36.05 and in 1929 just $35.73.

• • •

Boston's Christmas Club savings this year amounted to $7,346,792, in 1928, $7,237,837 and in 1927 they were $7,253,802. The Christmas Club idea, which originated in 1909 has grown rapidly, despite the competition of "Another Christmas" and other so-called rivals.

• • •

The total distributed to 9,900,000 Christmas Club members throughout the country this year is around $600,000,000. There are also Banks and financial institutions participating in the big hand out. I am told by President Herbert P. Bank, president of the Christmas Club a division of National Bankers Service Corp., that Massachusetts is second among all the states in the per capita Christmas Club savings.

• • •

Addressing a body of suburban bankers several weeks ago, I found enthusiasm for Christmas Clubs was at least as great in outlying cities and towns as in Boston itself. The bankers I addressed were highly pleased by the spread of the Christmas Club idea declaring it brought other business worth-while to the banks.

• • •

Nathan L. Amster, prominent Boston and New York financier is now on his fight to obtain a list of the holders of Interborough voting trust certificates. The long fought for list has been given Mr. Amster by President Hedley of Interborough Rapid Transit.

• • •

I am told that at the Washington conference of railroad executives in addition to the agreement not to cut wages, an unwritten pact was made not to increase rates unless it was absolutely necessary.

• • •

The flood of extra, Christmas and special dividends, together with dividend increases and suspensions, continues unabated. The record of dividend omissions looks very small beside these others.

• • •

At the start of the current year leaders were remarkably optimistic in tone, but the record of industrial and financial results, aside from the stock market debacle, is proving reprieved, fair to show they did need of apprehension.

• • •

In a recent radio address, Dr. Julius Klein assistant secretary of commerce, spoke on "Business and the subject of Advertising. Will these be any tendency to reduce advertising appropriations? Dr. Klein makes assumption that this is one way of saving money, and that changed conditions may indicate that buying public somewhat less responsive to advertising appeal" Most earnestly hope that nothing of the sort will occur. Advertising should go ahead with all of its characteristic fight. It is not to say that it should be extravagant —and there may be some situations at least, to determine whether wasteful practices have crept into that field.

• • •

An addition is now possible to our recent column about the optimism of the Have Faith in New England idea. Declaring he is one of New England's youngest to "stick an abiding optimism," Thomas J. Lawrence of Boston recognizes the New England Council upon the utmost body of the University of New Hampshire Graduate recognizes the advantages of to in New England before commencing a definite search for what will take up your life work. Pointing to opportunities in New England, he declared that "New England" recognizes the value of the trained mind."

• • •

New England, with 2 per cent of the nation's area and 7 per cent of its people, has a much higher proportion of individual bank deposits, savings depositors, and life insurance. Mr. Lawrence said. "On the industrial side of the picture New England has 10 per cent of the nation's manufacturing establishments and 13 per cent of wage earners in manufacturing. Our transportation facilities are very highly developed."

Small Incomes Enjoy Biggest Tax Reduction

Stockholders Also Helped; Earned Income Needs Consideration

By B. C. Forbes

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—Secretary Mellon's income tax reduction cuts down payments by those having less than $9000 net income by two-thirds, but lightens the payments on high incomes by only one-twentieth, or even less.

Is this why Congress has shown such readiness in endorse the changes?

Secretary Mellon's own income tax will be cut less than 5 per cent, contrasted with cuts of over 60 per cent in some instances.

$4000-$6000 incomes, and 48 per cent on $10,000 incomes.

Here is one instance where the charge surely cannot be made that the poor are being fleeced and the rich favored.

• • •

Congress should give heed to the monster petition requesting relief for those who have actually saved their own incomes, in contrast with those who enjoy incomes they don't personally have to earn.

Corporations are permitted to deduct from their earnings substantial allowances for "depreciation."

How can Congress contend that the man who earns his living by the sweat of his brain or body doesn't, in course of the years, depreciation of his ability to make money? The human mind and body wear out just as inevitably as any mine or oil pool or piece of machinery or railway or ship or forest.

After all, the high-earning period of a man's (or a woman's) life is very limited. It takes the normal professional man, for example, many years of expensive education to qualify him for his life's work. Then it consumes these other years for him to gain sufficient experience and recognition to get anything like generous remuneration.

Similarly, the young business man ordinarily has to serve long years in subordinate jobs before he can reach a responsible, well-paid position.

• • •

Why would it not be fair to tax such individuals more considerately than those who inherit, or receive incomes from other sources for which they don't have to toil?

• • •

Do you know just how much income you will have to pay under the new law?

The following table tells you.

The compilation applies to a married man with no dependents. It assumes that all income is not over $10,000, which is earned income. Also that one-quarter of the income in excess of $10,000, and all in excess of $30,000 earned income is reached. Is also earned.

Of course, a great many well-to-do and wealthy persons whose income taxes have been reduced by only a small percentage will hardly fit from the lowering of the corporation tax from 12 per cent to 11 per cent. This is equal to a reduction of 8 1-3 per cent in the total amount which each corporation will have to pay. This saving naturally accrues to the benefit of the owners of the corporations, the stockholders.

Statistics recently published showed that corporations paid on their 1927 incomes a total tax of $1,130,671,128. The saving of 8 1-3 per cent on that amount would have meant $94,222,844.

It will this be seen that the cut in the corporation tax will amount to a considerable item on this year's record-breaking net earnings.

Will Congress please give a little more thought to those who have to earn their own incomes?

THE WORLD OF FINANCE

BOND MARKET IS LIGHTEST IN WEEKS

In contrast to the buoyancy that accompanied the easing of money rates since the deflation in stocks, the market has been irregularly lower in recent sessions. The appearance of the higher charges for time loans which normally appear at this season. The rise in money has so far amounted to only half of one per cent, but that has been sufficient to keep bond buying down.

The list was steadier in today's trading, although changes were small. United States Governments met with a somewhat better market and the Treasuries made an upward turn.

Outstanding in the news was the sale of a $65,000,000 issue of New York City 4½ per cent corporate stock to a banking syndicate headed by the National City Company on a bid of 102.3467. This represented a premium of $1,376,455 on the securities, which were divided into three groups: $27,000,000 in 50-year stock; $30,000,000 in serial bonds due one to 40 years, and $8,000,000 in one to 30-year bonds.

The flotation was originally scheduled for late October, but was postponed because of unfavorable market conditions. Interest in municipal bonds has become lively in the last month, and numerous loans have been sold at par or slightly over. The comparatively high price which New York was able to command was taken as indication of the bond market's improved position, despite the temporary dullness which may be expected to prevail until the holiday pressure on money rates has relaxed.

Rails displayed firmness, with tiny gains and losses evenly distributed. Investment bonds in the utility and industrial groups were likewise steady and no changes of consequence developed.

STOCKS DOUBLE RECENT LOWS

New York, Dec. 11—P. H. Platt of Prince & Whitely contributes the following: "The market, as indicated by the averages, has corrected almost 35 per cent of the previous loss. A number of issues have rallied 50 per cent or more.

"Comparison of October-November lows with December highs shows about 65 stocks have registered 100 per cent or more. However, this was not exactly a bull market for these issues, as most of them are still far under top prices of the year.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

The 'New' Driver

In Massachusetts, Hereafter, Must Pass a Severe Examination

ON and after the 15th of the present month the NEW applicant for a license to drive automobiles in Massachusetts is going to be subjected to stern and searching inquiry.

There are 86 questions in the pamphlet which has been prepared under the direction of Captain Parker, registrar of motor vehicles, and the candidate may be asked any of them.

One very proper question is:

"Have you been arrested for drunkenness during the past year?"

Another:

"Have you any infirmity which would interfere with the proper operation of a motor vehicle?"

The questionnaire becomes even more personal with:

"15—Have you ever been treated for: (A) Any mental disorder? If so, by what institution or doctor? (B) Any heart disorder? (C) Epilepsy or fainting spells?"

The answer to another question, as they both appear in the booklet, MIGHT have been clarified a bit by the discriminating blue pencil of a copy reader. This is the question.

"Q—What is the right of way law at intersecting ways?"

And this is the reply indicated by the book:

"Every operator of a motor vehicle or other vehicle approaching the area included in the prolongation of the lateral boundary lines of two or more streets that meet at an angle must grant the right of way at the point of intersection to a vehicle approaching from his right, provided that the other vehicle is arriving at the point of intersection at approximately the same instant; but the person entering the area of intersection first has the right of way even though such person comes from the left."

But before prospective applicants begin to protest they would better obtain copies of the pamphlet and prepare for the quiz.

The MAIN question, bear in mind, is the protection of human life. The death list is approaching the 100-a-month point.

Vision tests, road tests, rule-of-the-road tests, any and every reasonable step which authority may take for the purpose of keeping from steering wheels the hands of the unfit will be supported by public opinion.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 11—Russian aristocrats so long exiled in New York are no longer newspaper copy. They have become absorbed by a vast economic machinery in the business of making a living. Their former pomp is now expressed in a doorman's uniform here and there. And that is all.

For a time they rode a wave of sympathy which swept them to fashionable teas and select dinner parties. But people became glutted with incredulous tales of devasted estates, pilfered jewels and drops from high places. The Russian became overweighted with his inborn conservatism.

When he found cold listeners, he began to plunge into whatever work he could find. And hundreds, whimpering with woe, found America the opportunity land it had been painted. More than 100 buffeted cabs have become successfully established after working up from menial jobs.

The educated Russian is an adaptable creature. His bearing, his charm of manner and polished air of good breeding fit him for most any role. He is especially proficient in salesmanship. Two have made extraordinary inroads in the insurance world and a number as bond salesmen.

The Russian ladies of culture have also displayed unusual tact in making their way in the commercial world. Several of noble heritage are presiding over small specialty salons along Park and Madison aves. Four of the high born are housekeepers in select hotels.

While there are still gleaners scouring for crumbs from such tables the majority have given a splendid account of themselves. The Russian cafes lodged in the dim side street cellars have shrunk from a hundred to a handful. They were once the fonts of expatriated anguish.

Here the sad eyes with thoughts as grey as the waters of the Neva collected to touch glasses and live over the happy days when Leningrad was St. Petersburg and one of the gayest capitals in all the world.

In a New York hotel shortly after the war a waiter confided he was a Russian prince. I accepted his confidence with mild scepticism. Two years ago I saw him among the fashionable hotel guests at St. Moritz. Jay O'Brien presented him. "Do you believe me now?" he inquired a little stiffly. And was I confused!

A chorus girl was praising the intellectual qualities of one of her guild. "She can speak five languages," she said.

Apropos of nothing at all, it seems to me the most beautifully named spot in all America is the Shenandoah Valley.

The old-clothes market survives on Baxter st. in the East Side Daily the eager merchants are on the sidewalk hagging with those who desire to sell and buy cast off garments. It is a seedy down-at-the heel crew and yet many men have grown rich bartering in old clothes. They become the shrewdest of all traders.

Many of the flashy Broadway boys drop down to Baxter st. to pick up bargains. Dishonest valets take loot here and often clothes made by expensive tailors may be salvaged out of the mountainous piles. There is a tailor on Tenth ave. who specializes in refurbishing such garments and fitting them to new owners with the latest cut and at a small price. Some of the sagaciest dressers on the stage are outfitted in this manner.

The Mummy room of the Museum of Art has a ghoulish fascination for many. There are a number of "regulars" who pay weekly and monthly visits.

From G. F., Central Park South: Your column, along with two other columns were so irritating this morning, I threw the papers away and cooled off stamping about the Central Park lake.

The next time, if you think of it, feed a couple of the swans for me. I am way behind on my swan feeding.

The Frost Is Off the Pumpkin

By NELSON HARDING

"The frost is on the pumpkin,"
James Whitcomb Riley sang,
But here the frost is melting
In spite of wintry tang.

The warming sun is risen,
The pumpkin still is sound,
And it is not a poor one
That Santa Claus has found. —N. H.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

A member of Parliament rocked gently on his elected heels the other day and welcomed England's guests to the South Pole.

If this is a typical parliamentary welcome it makes a guest room out of a cold storage plant.

It also reminds us that the intrepid Shackleton was the discoverer of the Antarctic picnic grounds.

We already have the mandatory over the North Hub of the wheel. Admiral Peary discovered that, and his claims were verified when Doc Cook used gumdrops as scientific instruments.

Neither pole is within easy commuting distance of the high rent districts and the Republican Campaign Committee is shy-nutty if it spends any gravy in these remote counties.

We concede England's claim to the zone of the midnight freckle. We were polar explorers ourselves at the Army-Notre Dame game.

Eight-five thousand bugs were chilblaining sweetly when the referee blew the whistle for the opening kickoff at that frozen tournament.

We checked up thirty thousand silver pint flasks in skirmish formation. Then the old graduates opened with their heavy quart batteries at point blank range.

We got just as cold as anybody else even if we never went to college. Our life was saved by a Princeton man breathing in our direction.

That game gave the public an idea of what Commander Byrd suffered trying to grab the handle of the world. He has opened up a new world for the peace advocates to wrangle over.

We would like to join a basket party headed in that direction. But it must be a big basket.

Our share of the geographical plunder will be the forty-ninth state entitled to two senators below zero.

England retains her rights of prior discovery, and we hope she tries to grow tea there.

H. G. Wells Writes on

"The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With

Prof. Julian Huxley and Geo. P. Wells

CHAPTER FOUR
4. Childhood Adolescence and Maturity

AT birth the whole economy of the child is suddenly changed. It has now to breathe air and collect its own oxygen, and it has to digest its own food. The lungs and bowels begin to work. As a matter of fact, the strain on the digestive organs is not very severe, for the baby receives in its mother's milk a diet that requires hardly any chemical adjustment. Moreover, since it is no longer housed in a warm incubator, it has to regulate its own body temperature.

H. G. Wells

Nevertheless, as far as development is concerned, birth is an incidental event that hardly affects a slow, continuous process.

During the first few weeks of uterine life all the organs of the embryo are laid down in a more or less rudimentary way, and thereafter development consists in the elaboration and perfection of those rudiments.

This is a process that goes on for some twenty-five years. Birth is an event for which the organs of the mother, not the baby are responsible, and it does not correspond to any definite developmental change in the organism of the latter.

One of the most striking changes that occurs during the first years of childhood is the mushroom-like expansion of the brain.

By the end of the second year the child's brain has attained more than half the adult size; by the end of the fourth year over 80 per cent of its final bulk is already present.

The adult cranium is a strong bony box that protects the brain but, at the same time prevents any further expansion of its precious contents; the brain has therefore to attain its full size early in life while the skullbones are still only partly formed and before they are solidly joined together.

As the brain expands there is a similar growth of the legs, accompanied by changes occurring elsewhere in the body, and associated with the assumption of the upright posture.

The most important of these changes is the development of the nerve-tracts leading from the brain to the limb-muscles and enabling the latter to be accurately controlled by the former.

At the same time the legs grow longer and stronger, and the lumbar region of the vertebral column—the loins—elongates and consolidates to support the weight of the upper parts.

During the first two years or so there is another important process—the eruption or appearance of the milk teeth, the first of the two sets with which we are provided. The second set begins to replace the first at about the fifth year, and it is not complete until the wisdom teeth have erupted in about the 22d year.

It is not possible to name a definite prime or climax, as it were to human life, because our different tissues perfect themselves and wear out at different rates.

The elastic and muscular coats of our arteries are at their best at about 25; this is when the professional athlete, who has to make sudden physical spurts, reaches his highest point.

The brain has a longer life; it attains its most accurate control of the muscles between 30 and 40, and as an organ of thought it is probably at its best between 40 and 50.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

A WOMAN is often the cause of a man's downfall—and always the cause of his sprucing UP.

When a man begins to go in for a high polish on his nails and put lonic on his hair, his wife lays down her bridge-hand with a sigh, and goes out to look for "la femme."

A "good fellow" is one who can always be counted on to trim the Christmas tree at the Lodge or the Town Hall—while his wife does that little job for the children at home.

No woman appreciates her husband's brilliant versatility until she sees him using the vibrator on his head, eating his morning grapefruit and reading his newspaper, all at the same time.

It is always a surprise to a divorcee, to discover how long it takes her to get over the habit of listening for a man's key in the latch, evenings.

In fact, a woman is always wanting to "get at the root of things"; but a man is satisfied just to gather the blossoms and let things take care of themselves.

Some men never settle down to the peg-trot of matrimony until after fifty—and then, it is usually their erratics, or their acrobatics, rather than their commonsense, that forces them to slacken the pace.

A woman will have to be awfully careful about the neckties and handkerchiefs she gives her husband this Christmas; because, owing to the slump, he may insist on WEARING them.

Most women will argue even with the DICTIONARY, or the JURY, if it takes twelve good men and true to back the last word with a woman.

The Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

SOME hours may be dismal
And barren of delight,
Some moods may bring abysmal
Depths of night.

Nor is this burden only
A cross of yours or mine,
To all come seasons lonely
When no stars shine.

Ah, who can buy with sighing,
A share of light or song?
Why vex the day with crying
For plans gone wrong?

And why keep for tomorrow
One thought of such alloy?
Why not forget each sorrow
And cling to joy?

Smiling George Still Smiles

Some Murders Are Quite Safe

(Copyright, 1929)

"SMILING" GEORGE McMANUS, STILL SMILING

AT the beginning of the trial of George A. McManus, whom you see above, indicted for the murder of Arnold Rothstein, this newspaper printed his smiling picture beside the stern face of the murdered man, and asked whether readers thought that McManus' smile would be interrupted by any conviction.

It was NOT interrupted. McManus is set free. The judge instructed the jury to acquit because the prosecutor had established no case against him.

It is said by some of his friends "up and down Broadway" that "George had to stand for an indictment, but wasn't worried because he knew first that he hadn't murdered Rothstein, and second because there were no witnesses, anyhow."

Whatever the facts may be, "Smiling" George A. McManus is now smiling and free for good.

He has been put in jeopardy of his life only for the Rothstein murder, nothing has been proved against him. And he cannot be tried and put in danger of his life again.

If tomorrow he should confess, and PROVE that he killed Rothstein, the State could do nothing to him.

The question, "WHO DID KILL ROTHSTEIN," probably will remain unanswered.

Many know who killed him, whose was the pistol, who fired the shot that killed, and WHY.

There exists a social circle in which murder is always in reserve as the last resort—just as murder, called "war," has always been held in reserve by nations as THEIR last resort.

And when the circle does employ murder, it is not polite, politic or customary to name the murderer.

The pistol "barks," as the descriptive writers put it. Everybody else is silent.

Rothstein, himself dying in the hospital with a bullet in his body, and asked by the police "Who shot you?" shook his head and only answered, "You ought to know better than to ask me that."

You ask, "Why is it that a man can be murdered, with a dozen or more knowing who did the killing, and nobody ever punished?"

Those familiar with the laws of gangland, the close combination, through bribery and profit-sharing that exists between bootleg criminals, and some officials, will reply:

"YOU OUGHT TO KNOW BETTER THAN TO ASK THAT QUESTION."

Some murders are safe, because it is particularly UNSAFE to give any information about them, because all concerned are satisfied that the murder was "one of the necessary kind."

Three-Minute Journeys

By TEMPLE MANNING

TO the average mind there is a sort of romance and mysticism pervading Spain and everything Spanish. Much of this is imagination, naturally, but, nevertheless, this Old World country, which was so powerful during the days when this continent was being opened and explored, has vast stores of interest for the traveler. And for that reason I am going to take my readers on a short trip through the land of the mantillas.

Madrid, the capital, should be the first place to visit.

The capital of Spain is, indeed, a city of the old and the new. Historically it is old, for the name Madrid appears in historical records as far back as the 10th century. However, it was not until the middle of the 16th, when the city became the royal residence, that the city assumed any real importance.

With this long history behind it, it is not peculiar that one should find in Madrid evidences of the life and civilization which existed hundreds of years ago. Yet on the other hand, the city has developed and there are many monuments to present-day business and science.

Life in Madrid seems to be almost play. There is none of the hustle and bustle of New York, Paris or London. Everyone seems intent on enjoying life.

Many of the buildings of Madrid are architectural masterpieces. The Royal Palace and the Central Post-office are both extremely well-executed buildings. But much of Madrid's art wealth will be found inside one building—the Prado Museum, or the Museum of Painting and Sculpture, designed by Villeneuva. Here are grouped the works of many old masters—works that were collected by monarchs. There are over 2000 canvases in this museum, and they are arranged so as to give the visitor the most advantageous view of these masterpieces.

Among the painters whose works are hung in the Prado Museum are Rubens, a superb collection incidentally; El Greco, Murillo, Velasquez and Goya.

The sidewalk cafes, the grand boulevards with their coaches and automobiles swinging by in steady processions, the parks, the excitement on days when a bull fight or some other sporting event is held—all these and more combine to make Madrid an ever-changing scene of utmost fascination. One can spend days wandering around the city, exclaiming in delight over the old shops and trades which one may find, or marveling at the beauty of some of the newer things.
